"BICENTENNIAL BLUES" With blessings from Hon. Norman Kau Kee, New York City's Commissioner on Human Rights, the Theater for Asian American Performing Artists recently presented "The Asian American Bicentennial Blues."

"I wish to commend you," said the Commissioner, "for your continuing effort against discrimination, prejudice and false images in the performing arts."

"We plan to produce," say the Asian American Performing Artists. "shows which illuminate the Asian American experience. It is also our intention to present a counter-weighing image to the stereotypes which have been, and continue to be, projected in film, television, and the theater."

WHO ARE THEY?—Catherine Okada Robin, a pretty brunette, hails from Pittsburgh, Pa., and has appeared in TV, theaters, and top night clubs both in U.S. and Canada.

tions. She feels that the work at La Mama was a wonderful experience and great for her feet."

Miho, a pert comedy miss with a belting, but sentimental voice, gives competition to Pat Suzuki. She was in both the New York and Tokyo productions of "Hair". She was in an off-Broadway production called the "Golden Bat", and was with the Bungakuza Repertory Company in Japan.

Talented Stephen Okada, another native-born New Yorker, has appeared not only with "Bicentennial Blues" but also with shows presented by the City's Dept. of Cultural Affairs.

CHINESE AMERICANS — Alvin Ing, who is President of the Asian American Performing Artists, comes from Honolulu and has a B.A. in music from the Univ. of Hawaii and a Master of Education in music from Teacher College, Columbia University.
