

NATIONAL COUNCIL NARRATIVE

Nominations, Financial Statement accepted in session of first day

(Narrative of the National Council meeting continues from last week's coverage of the Tuesday morning session. Reminders of the first day was devoted to an extensive report on the new JACL fund accounting system, which was introduced in the last issue—Editor.)

Sacramento
The National Council reconvened at 1:45 p.m. after "lunch on your own" and Mas Hironaka of San Diego asked if the 1977-78 JACL budget was available. Shig Sugiyama explained because of the many changes contemplated, it would be available in accordance with the agenda, as adopted, on the final day.

It was also pointed out that the District Governors Caucus was writing out the regional budgets and programs. Treasurer Tom Moriyuchi of Seattle said his committee would continue to meet after supper.

Nominations
Dr. Toraru Ishiyama of Cleveland attending his first national convention and serving as chairman of a national committee for the first time, submitted the nominations report in a light-handed manner.

He first wondered whether his group was constitutionally formed since the committee should be appointed one year prior and this one was organized on Jan. 31, 1976, as follows:

Ishiyama, chairman; Kar Horita, EDC; Ron Yehino, MDC; Ben Nakagawa, PNWDC; Wilson Makabe, NWDC; Dr. Jzumi Tanaka, CCDC; Masamune Kojima, PSWDC; Glenn Moriyuchi, IDC; and Em Nakazono, MPDC. (Ishiyama was replaced by Mas Hironaka when the former decided to run for vice as nominees are barred from the committee.)

Ishiyama suggested the chairman should be appointed immediately after this convention and have district representatives designated so that the nominations committee might rather in mid-year to assist in the search for candidates. He was also troubled by the lack of history which, he said, allowed for creativity but the situation also tends to repeat past mistakes.

Ishiyama pointed out that his committee had only one nominee at the time nominations were closed 90 days prior (Mar. 21) to the first meeting of the National Council and there were more than the first weekend of April. So that the slate as presented was comprised of four "officially" nominated and five expected to be nominated from the floor, provided present forms were in his hands by Friday noon. The nominees were:

(To be nominated.)
VP (Gen. Off.)—Gyozo Iwihara, EDC, and Tetsu Misaka, IDC.
VP (Pub. Aff.)—Masamune Kojima, PSWDC, and Mas Yamasaki, MDC.
VP (Res. Off.)—Dr. James Tsujimura, PNWDC.
VP (Pub. Aff.)—Henry Tanaka, MDC, and Judge Mikio Uchiyama, CCDC.
Treas.—Dr. Paul Fuku, PSWDC, and Ed Moriyuchi, NWDC.
Hironaka asked whether names were true that Shake Uehio, Salt Lake, was a nominee for vice president for public affairs but Ishiyama declared that had been "de-termined".

Wilson Makabe moved for addition of Ishiyama's report and it was recorded by a female voice who failed to identify and carried by voice vote.

Identification

One of the problems to persist throughout the biennial meeting was reminder that delegates addressing the chair should first identify by name and chapter. And tapes of the Tuesday session were especially difficult to transcribe since there were many who did not follow this rule.

By the second day, Phyllis Hayashibara of the JACL staff hardening the tape recorder interrupt'd speakers with her plea to "identify please". Some loquacious delegates didn't learn at all as they were still being asked to give their name and chapter in the closing hours of the 24th Biennial.

Sugiyama also insisted on motions be in writing and handed to the clerks, Miyo Tatsumi of the JACL staff and Stan Kiyokawa, PNW-IDC regional director. Resolutions, also in writing, were to be submitted on a regular form by 8 p.m. to Steve Nakashima, West Valley, national resolutions committee chairman.

Financial Policy

In answer to one questioner, who wondered about a policy call for all chapters to submit annual reports of funds expended, Visbal felt ultimately there should be but the reality was that in a voluntary type organization, all reports would not come in on time. "And if you don't have them all, it really makes no sense to include any of them," Visbal said.

Hence, national membership organizations are reporting in this fashion with the Headquarters covering its own specific areas. District Councils might prepare their own statements without including their member chapters by the same token. The financial policy, therefore, should indicate what entities are being covered in the statements.

But this does not excuse chapters or district councils from filing their respective financial reports to Internal Revenue Service or state tax boards, Visbal reminded. Failure would jeopardize the tax-exempt status of the whole organization.

Each of the four category of funds can be interchanged—for instance, income from endowment can be used and would be reflected in the current fund columns, restricted or unrestricted. This explains why this type of accounting is fairly complex, according to Visbal, and the records at Headquarters were such that it was difficult to discern the fund balances.

"I don't want any misunderstanding on the condition of the books at Headquarters. It just took a little while to get them for this report," Visbal stressed, "in tracing back through all the historical assets."

"We were also aware that the possibility existed some member might know the restrictions placed on a particular fund. Hence there was a delay in delivering this report. And if there is such information, it should be relayed to one of the officers so that proper changes can be made."

All Purpose Statement

Statement of support, revenue and expenses in Fund balances (Exhibit B), Visbal characterized, is an "all purpose statement"—essentially one if income and expenses.

Looking at the first column (unrestricted current funds), Visbal noted total revenue was $531,933 for FY 1975, expenses came to $579,831 for a "deficiency" of $47,898. There were other changes in the fund balance: (a) equipment acquired from unrestricted funds at $3,581 and (b) transfer to quasi-endowment fund of $6,550. Fund balance at beginning of the FY 1975 was $110,522 and "working capital" at year's end $52,493.

Reading across the totals of other funds, total income for Restricted fund was $290,561; expenses $103,946 for an excess of $186,615; other changes of $31,273 for property and equipment acquired from the Building Fund. Restricted fund balance at the start of FY 1975 was $229,302, leaving a year-end balance of $104,644.

Total income for Endowment and similar funds was $8,000. There were no expenses. There was one change ($6,550) in the fund balance, which was $514,374 at the start of the year and $528,924 at year's end.

There was no income activity under the Plant fund but expense was $1,993. Changes in the fund balance were the property and equipment acquired from the building fund and unrestricted fund totaling $314,854. Fund balance at start of the year was $80,560 and at year's end $399,421.

Grand total shows $830,494 income; $985,770 program service expense; and $114,724 excess. Fund balance at start of year was $940,758 and at year's end $1,085,482.

In addition to the contributions from the public, sources of revenue noted in the JACL statement include: Membership dues ($32,003); government grants ($37,404); private grants ($23,233); membership support revenue ($56,475); health insurance plan administrative fees ($28,467); travel program administrative fees ($15,737); investment income ($29,800); miscellaneous ($1,733).

Expenses in Detail

Essentially, Statement of functional expenses (Exhibit C) is a detailed breakdown of costs less depreciation of current funds, restricted and unrestricted, at Headquarters, which includes the operations of regional office, Washington Office and Pacific Office.

"While all this may appear confusing (because of the use of the number of exhibits and new format), it really isn't for it is logical," Visbal said at this point, "and you can see where numbers and patterns all fit in the supplemental data."

National expenses are:
Salaries, benefit $319,274
Adv. Exp. 7,702

The report, however, did not carry the breakdown by regional offices at this point in time. Visbal explained after a query by Stephen Nakashima of West Valley. Expenses were kept track by their natural classifications for this report though they are separate at Headquarters by regional offices, etc.

Major expenses by offices are available, but some of the smaller items may be lumped together, Visbal added. Major expenses would be for salaries, personnel benefit, rent, etc., for FY 1975. But for FY 1976—all are definitely being kept separately.

$492,300 budget adopted, $1 dues increase fails

SACRAMENTO, Calif.—The National JACL budget for the next biennium, starting Oct. 1, will be $492,300 with no increase in membership dues.

The convention struggled with fitting all the recommended programs and increased cost of operations with the projected income of $492,300—about $17,000 less than what has been projected for FY 1976 ending Sept. 30.

Overall regional office budgets were also reduced from $103,500 in this biennium to $84,000 for the next biennium. The ad hoc budget committee recommended five programs totaling $42,500 be funded but only $20,000 was available. However last minute adjustments were made to square with budget. Four of the five surviving programs will now be funded at $26,000.

(A detailed report on the budget will appear in the National Council Narratives covering the Saturday session later this month.)

JAMES MURAKAMI: Sonoma County JACL First engineer to be Nat'l President, and the last to serve as president-elect

Jim Murakami

Murakami was sworn into office with his new board at the Sayonara Banquet (June 26), at Sacramento Convention Center by Superior Court Judge Mamoru Sakuma before an audience of nearly 700.

On the board are: Tats Misaka (Salt Lake), vp gen op; Dr. Jim Tsujimura (Portland), vp res sv; Judge Mikio Uchiyama (Fowler), vp pub aff; Masamune Kojima (West Lake), vp memb sv; and Ed Moriyuchi (San Francisco), treasurer.

Tsujimura, Uchiyama and Kojima were immediate or current district governors who served with Murakami, who was president-elect—the last time this position has been filled as this office has been removed. Next biennium, the president will stand election.

Misaka was also a district governor several years ago, while Moriyuchi, who is a certified public accountant with offices near Headquarters (a consideration which proved effective in the balloting), has been chapter president for several years and district treasurer.

Takei appointed to superior court

SACRAMENTO — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. appointed State Consumer Affairs Director Takesugu Takei, 46, to a judgeship on the Santa Clara County superior court last week (June 30). A Ralph Nader supporter, Richard Spohn, 33, a division chief in the department, was named successor.

Takei succeeds Judge Robert Cassin, who retired. The Nisei judge-designate was deputy public defender in Santa Clara County before being tapped by Brown in Mar, 1975, to head the consumer affairs state agency.

On the bench, Takei will receive an annual salary of $45,299. Spohn will be paid $34,104 at his new post.

Federal Judge Takasugi

At Los Angeles, newly-appointed U.S. District Judge Robert M. Takasugi, 45, was sworn into office July 6 at the Federal Courthouse in Chief Judge Albert Stephen's chambers.

In private practice after graduating in law from USC in 1959, Takasugi was appointed to the municipal bench in 1973 and to the superior court bench in 1975.

Foundation Responsiveness Project problems aired

SACRAMENTO, Calif.—Unable to conclude its own agenda in a day, the National JACL Board held two extraordinary sessions during Convention week here (June 20-26).

President Shig Sugiyama managed to clear nearly all of the 15 items on Monday (see July 2 PC), tabling one with respect to the problems within the Foundation Responsiveness Project.

The first extraordinary session Tuesday night (June 21), lasting four hours, was conducted before a near full-house at National Board meetings are open to the membership. The board met in the same Comstock Room of Sacramento Inn, where the National Council assembled during the week.

The secondary extraordinary session Saturday morning was brief to hear acting JACL legal counsel Frank Iwama's report on the matter and project coordinator Amy Dol's willingness to stay with the project toward fulfillment.

Nat'l Board

—to change the views of major foundations of Japanese American and give them support.

Ray Bendiner, JACL development officer whose services were terminated last month, had noted in his memorandum to the Board that foundations have regarded proposals from JACL as "just another ethnic group asking for a handout".

Sequoia JACL Letter

Hopeing that the problem might be resolved before the Convention, Sequoia JACL president David Oku in a letter of May 23 to Sugiyama with copies to all chapters asked for a fact-finding committee to investigate the question of a possible conflict of interest and to audit the expenditures of Foundation Responsiveness Project.

Sequoia JACL's concern were natural since Amy Dol, chapter vice president, was hired in March as project coordinator.

SACRAMENTO, Calif.—Michie Weglyn, author of "Years of Infamy", was named the "Japanese American of the Biennium", earning JACL's most coveted award and accepting the gold JACL medallion at the Convention's Sayonara Banquet June 26 at Sacramento Convention Center.

She was the unanimous choice of the selection committee, chaired by Jerry Irel of Contra Costa JACL, The National JACL Board, during its meeting June 21, concluded.

Receiving the silver JACL medallions as runners-up were Jerry Enomoto of Sacramento, state director of corrections, and Harry Kubo of Parlier, president of the Nisei Farmers League.

Cal. legislature asks Mr. Ford to pardon Iva

SACRAMENTO, Calif.—During the week of the National JACL Convention, the California State Legislature unanimously joined thousands of other Americans in asking President Ford to grant Iva Toguri D'Aquino, found guilty of treason, full and unconditional pardon.

The Assembly, acting on the joint resolution introduced by Assemblyman Floyd Mori (D-Pleasanton), passed it 60-0 and the same day the Senate passed it 22-0.

During the convention, there were wild rumors the President would pardon Iva on July 4, her birthday.

The 24th Biennial Is Over

Best test for a convention is to ask the delegates how they are enjoying it. By the end of the week, a consensus looms. Many were telling each other, "Let's get together again at Salt Lake!" Such expressions auger well for the Organization about to prepare for its 25th Biennial.

A touch of the rich Utah hospitality during the Convention—apparent by bowls laden with salt water taffy on the tables at the council sessions and attentive spirit of Utah delegates and boosters, young and old, winning new friends—helped also.

The friendly Sacramentans who shouldered the awesome task of hosting the 24th Biennial must have wondered where all the people went—since pre-registration levels were disheartening. They were living by their unofficial theme: "Hang Loose!" Officially, "A Proud Legacy" was to be promoted.

Now that the 24th Biennial is history, the Sacramentans deserve the salvos being heaped upon them. One of them asked, "Did we turn JACL around?" A veteran JACLer assured, "It seems we're back on track. You even got Mike (Masaoka) back in business."

The forging of a campaign for reparations is destined to play a big role in the style that just installed National President Jim Murakami will enact in the weeks and months to come. Flamboyance is not Jim's fashion but neither is he unimaginative. He is a leader of tested abilities. JACL in the coming biennium shall be sure-footed as engineers—like Jim—have to be.

Memories of the first Sacramento convention in 1950 when delegates met till 3 a. m. Sunday to adopt a budget ($85,000), increase dues $1 (up to $3) and adjust district quotas based on membership performance are still vivid to delegates who attended that session. It was also the convention that integrated subscription of the Pacific Citizen with JACL membership.

That the 1976 Sacramento convention adjourned on schedule by 6 p. m. Saturday speaks to the executive capability of immediate past president Shig Sugiyama and a willingness on the part of delegates to work together—give and take here and there being a constant mediator.

Since the $1 dues increase for FY 1977-78 was denied, district council then volunteered to reduce their allocations by $6,000 to sustain additional programs hard-up for JACL funding. Only $20,000 was available for additional programs which totaled $42,500. Substantial cuts amounting to $16,500 by proponents for specific programs as recommended were made in a matter of minutes in the final half-hour of the National Council session so that a $492,300 budget for FY 1977-78 balances with projected revenue.

This sudden move, probably motivated by the need to be on time and perhaps hunger pangs, was actually initiated when Edison Uno, of the Iva Toguri Committee, turned back the $5,000 allocated for his committee's work and said they would continue to rely on contributions. Reparations Committee said they would operate on about half of the $15,000 which it had. Even the Pacific Citizen made the picture by lowering its allocation from $15,000 to $10,000.

There is an adage, "Haste Makes Waste". But here, it made friends.

Convention Coverage

Putting to bed last week's issue was slightly different from the usual pace in that while we covered the National JACL Convention in Sacramento, we returned for a day on Thursday with all the copy, pictures and page layouts needed to complete pages 1 and 2 by the Saturday deadline.

You may say this is no way to run a paper, but such are the exigencies when deadlines intervene.

For a while we thought sneaking back to L.A. was one way to escape the heat building up in Sacramento—but it was equally torrid (102 and muggier). We now earn Sacramento was back to the cool 80s the week after the Convention.

While we wrap up the Convention highlights this week, we shall continue the narrative of National Council proceedings as gleaned from our notes and tapes. What appears in this week's issue completes the first session of Tuesday.

Korea revisited

Seoul, Korea
Except for the rugged hills that surround it, the Seoul of today gives a visitor the feeling of being in the Tokyo of two decades ago. A towering downtown skyline is starting to take shape at the center of interminable lanes of tiny shops in flimsy one-story structures. And the streets are jammed—that is the only word to describe the congestion—with people whose faces are indistinguishable from the Japanese.

There are 7 million of them today in this capital of South Korea. One-fifth of the nation's people live here within less than an hour's drive and a few minutes by air of an implacable enemy dedicated to their destruction.

The Korean war of 1950-53 left Seoul in ruins. That the South Koreans have been able to rebuild it literally under the guns of the north says a great deal about their fortitude. So does the fact that they are planning for the long future with projects like the handsome hillside campus of prestigious Seoul National University, whose Institute of Mass Communication recently invited me to visit the country.

The American presence is seen but faintly these days. Although there are some 41,000 U.S. servicemen stationed in Korea, I saw not a single American in uniform in Seoul. But evidences of American influence are plentiful. Unlike Japan, where traffic continues to keep to the left, Koreans drive on the right, more or less, as we do, in this country. The handsomely landscaped divided four-lane toll highway from Seoul to Pusan at the southern end of the peninsula is up to U.S. Interstate standards. And long convoys of U.S. military trucks were overtaken several times on a swift trip to the south.

Like many emerging countries, Korea demonstrates an interesting mixture of present and past. Farmers cut ripened barley by hand and plow rice paddies with oxen alongside the superhighway. The Hyundai shipyard, which can build a 265,000-ton supertanker in ten months with the help of highly sophisticated computer technology has one dock capable of assembling a million-ton ship if ever there should be an order for one. But just outside its gates, farm women in flowing white robes were separating the chaff from the barley by tossing it into the wind, a technique practiced in Biblical times.

Being an ancient people, the Koreans have long memories. There are reminders of the Japanese invasion of 1932 at virtually all the old temples and palaces I visited. Typically, an explanatory sign would say the palace originally was built by some king in the 14th Century, but was destroyed by fire during the Japanese invasion. When the Japanese left a few years later, the palace was rebuilt. The frequency with which this information is posted leads inevitably to the conclusion the Japanese were terribly careless with their matches.

That Japanese occupation of Korea, which was a byproduct of a plan to invade China, was short-lived. One reason was that the Korean navy under Admiral Yi Sun-sin, who had developed an ironclad ship, cut the Japanese communications lines. There is a statue of Admiral Yi on the main drag in front of some government buildings and not far from the United States embassy.

The scars of a more recent Japanese occupation, 1910 to 1946, are fresher. At one time 600,000 Japanese, plus several divisions of troops, live in Korea. They ran the government and the school without notable restraint. Most of the older Korean leaders today, including President Park, were educated in Japan.

I asked many Koreans how they feel about the Japanese today. Almost invariably they said by-gones should be by-gones. It was necessary to forget the injustices of the past and the concentrate on building the future which, of course, is heavily dependent on Japanese capital, trade and technical know-how. If nothing else, the Koreans are practical.

National endowment; $46,400 in scholarships and $11,303 in student aid for a total of $471,724—none of which can be expended except the interest, Visbal stressed.

Two other funds are regarded as "term endowment" or "quasi-endowment"—that is, the restriction has been internally placed and the principal may be assumed eventually. They are: Life memberships, $29,200; and scholarships, $28,000 (which were transferred from general operations).

Total amount in endowment is $528,924.

Fund Balances

John Asari of Venice-Culver, and PSWD vice-governor, asked whether "fund balance" at the start of the year represented a surplus from the previous year. To which Visbal replied:

"The fund balance represents the cumulative results of the operations of the fund—at any point in time. Historically, the net working capital prior to Oct. 1, 1974 (for unrestricted funds) came to $87,030—which was found from reconstructing the fund balances and adjusting the account down to end of the fiscal year, Sept. 30, 1975.

"And anytime we found something that would affect the fund balance for either this fiscal year or a previous year—those adjustments were made. If we found an item that reflected years back, the adjustment was made with the opening fund balance."

On the fund balance of $20,691 at the end of the year, Visbal said that was the net working capital available as of Sept. 30, 1975. Some of that, subsequently, was transferred to the scholarship fund, he reported.

JACL Reserve Fund

With respect to the JACL Reserve Fund, when another questioner thought that the fund balance at the start of FY 1975 of $80,000 should have been in the reserve fund, Visbal said he found no restrictions as to the use of the monies except internally by a unanimous decision of its board of directors (president, treasurer and director).

The reserve fund was not set up with specific restrictions. Visbal regarded such funds as a "specific pockets of cash" in a bank account to be used for general operations as directed by whatever policy the board desires.

Dr. Roy Nishikawa of Wilshire, who remembered a JACL Reserve Fund in the past, was told by Visbal that reserve fund is now part of the "fund balance."

Dr. Toaru Ishiyama of Cleveland noted a beginning fund balance of $87,000 and year-end balance of $20,000—which means if JACL spends at the same rate in FY 1976 and revenue is the same, "we'll be in the hole by about $38,000." So to keep operating, JACL would need to borrow, Visbal said. "So that's the next step in this program to find out what the financial status is this year," he counseled.

Restricted Funds

With respect to restricted funds, Mike Masaoka asked about the Hoso Bunka Foundation. Shig Sugiyama recalled JACL had received 10 million yen as "seed money" to produce a film on the Japanese in America. It is kept on deposit drawing interest until JACL can raise another $200,000 to produce such a film. And if the project is not launched, Sugiyama understood that JACL could retain the interest but must return the grant.

Grayce Ueyehara recalled a $5,000 scholarship contribution this past year and asked whether it was part of the $10,000 under Scholarship Foundation. Visbal explained that the $5,000 was placed in the Endowment fund since of the principal was not to be spent. The $10,000 in the foundation, however, is the figure which was available in FY 1975.

The amount of funds for scholarships in endowment was $28,000 as of end of FY 1975.

Endowment Fund

With respect to the National JACL Endowment Fund, Dave Ushio was puzzled by the wording in the JACL by-laws permitting use of the principal if three-fourths of the chapters in good standing consent in writing since Visbal had found in his research that original contributions to the Endowment Fund in the 1950s were made with the understanding none of the principal could be spent.

Admitting this might be a legal question, Visbal thought the by-laws would have to be amended to conform with wishes of those donors to the fund. A true endowment cannot be transferred by the Board or Council, Visbal said.

Dr. Nishikawa recalled, as one of the organizers of the modern JACL endowment fund campaign in the 1950s, that advertising notices and appeals indicated to donors the contributions would be a true endowment—to be kept permanently and only to be used if another national emergency such as another Evacuation threatens.

(The Pacific Citizen notes the original trust agreement was signed on Dec. 12, 1952 by Dr. Nishikawa and George Inagaki as trustees and two Bank of America officers as trustees. The provision that JACL could withdraw from the principal of the trust with written approval of three-fourths of the chapter is contained in the agreement. Those who contributed were mainly Evacuation claimants who had pledged to give 5 pct. of their award.)

Edison Uno wondered if it were now time for the National Council to consider the question of spending the principal. He recalled with Nishikawa that an attempt was made at the 1970 Convention to utilize the Endowment to fall to achieve the three-fourths written consent by one vote. In the meantime, Dr. John Kanda of Puyallup Valley headed a committee setting up guidelines for applicants.

(The 1972 Convention minutes substantiate Uno's recollection. There were 91 chapters voting and 69 was needed for the three-fourths majority. Sixty-eight approved, 9 disapproved and 14 abstained. Voting was done by mail and after four memos to the chapters, the results were announced July 12, 1971.)

Repeating, Ushio said he was puzzled by the disparate situation. It may be that each donor might have to be contacted if JACL decides to spend the principal if the donors were led to believe the contribution would not be touched except for grave emergencies.

Sugiyama intervened that the financial report had to be fully explained and cut the discussion short on the endowment fund.

Record Keeping

Richard Yamauchi, San Fernando Valley president, asked for recommendations on how records should be kept so that decisions could be made to avert financial problems.

Those who run their own businesses know when, Visbal pointed out, as their records are more timely and complete. Records should be updated constantly so that officers and staff can be apprised of projects and operations.

"At this point in time now, (JACL's financial records) are a lot different from this point in time a year ago," Visbal assured.

Yamauchi then wondered if there were any structural changes to coincide with the recommendation. Visbal said it was important to have written financial policies as were adopted by the National Board the previous day. These covered fiscal responsibility of particular funds.

"The first step would involve compiling an accounting manual—who would write what checks, who checks out the invoices, etc."

"Next step would be to review the financial reports and rendering decisions. Faster the better," he said. "Getting facts and figures six months late really doesn't help make good decisions."

There are also manuals that other tax-exempt nonprofit organizations have, which JACL might consider. "It's a lot better than reinventing the wheel," Visual said.

Fiscal Philosophy

Fred Hoshiyama, a YMCA executive at Los Angeles and the Venice-Culver delegate, raised a philosophical question with respect to the new financial report in that preparing the budget and its expenditure are "tools of the organization." He also noted that with the conventions in the summer months, the JACL fiscal year began in October and wondered whether a retrieval system could be devised to assist chapters understand the financial picture of the organization nationally to better work up the budget.

FROM HAPPY VALLEY

New York's Nominee

By SACHI SEKO

Salt Lake City
This year's award for the "Japanese American of the Biennium," is a deserving tribute to an old friend, Michi Nishihara Weglyn. I am sorry that we were unable to witness her first public appearance before a convention. I know that she must have impressed the gathering, groomed in a dress of her own design, delivering her acceptance appreciation with perfect poise and prose.

Before she faced the judgment of the National JACL Board, which selects the honoree, Michi was first singled by the New York JACL chapter as their nominee.

There is an interesting association between Michi and the New York chapter. When her book, "Years of Infamy," was written and accepted for publication, she had never held a JACL membership. As those who have read the book are aware, YOJ presents a differing perspective of JACL from previous volumes.

This is obvious from the book's dedication. Above a photograph on the dedicatory page is written, "Dedicated to Wayne M. Collins who did more to correct a democracy's mistake than any other person." Wayne Collins, for legitimate reasons, was a critic of JACL. He lived long enough to see this dedication in the Japanese edition of YOJ published and distributed in Japan in 1973. He died before the revised book was published by William Morrow and Company this year.

YOJ was late in being accepted for American publication. I remember in 1974, while Michi and I were having a brief reunion in New York, she received another rejection from a publisher. The book was always lauded for its scholarly research and writing, but refused on the grounds that it was "objectionable."

I recall her query, "objectionable to whom?" To write sensitivities on one hand. But on the other, perhaps to certain segments of her own people, who were reluctant for a revision of history. Here in East Lake, I once mentioned to a group gathered in our home, that elsewhere in the country our history was being rewritten. One admonished, "Let it be done in its time. After we are gone."

To have a publisher accept a book is one hurdle. But to promote and sell that book is another. It had to begin among those whom the book most concerned and best served. Michi's first real encounter with JACL began then. The body JACL, and not the individuals like Edison Uno and Mary Nakahiro Karasawa who have been Michi loyalists years long.

At the suggestion of Edison, she presented a loose manuscript copy to Ruby Yoshino Schaar, Executive Director of the New York JACL chapter. Ruby's name was familiar to me for I had read of her when she was a professional singer. She is that rare coupling of artist and activist.

The PC Observer

A bachelor is a guy who leans toward girls—but not far enough to lose his balance.

Before she faced the judgment of the National JACL Board, which selects the honoree, Michi was first singled by the New York JACL chapter as their nominee.

Michi Weglyn

Veteran JACL crusader, Ruby Schaar, directed her energies and talents toward the promotion of this book. She sent countless letters to individual JACL chapters, to friends, to media people. When Michi appeared on New York radio and TV, it was Ruby who lent her professional advice and strong personal support.

When I read the galley of YOJ, at best I expected lukewarm or silent treatment of the book by some members of the old guard JACL. Ruby is a worker of JACL's vineyard, a pioneer of the Yatabe and Kido era. She could have easily dismissed the book for a variety of reasons. Instead, she solicited the support of the New York chapter. I think by Michi's estimation, the chapter has devoted about six months exclusively to her book. The expediency with which they acted should be an example for other chapters.

As a people, we are inclined to be tardy and sometimes negligent in distributing honors in the proper time span. New York chapter dispels the stereotype of JACL always being a deliberative, plodding body.

I use this means not only to congratulate Michi for receiving her award, but New York JACL which has been responsible and responsive. I wish also to express admiration for great and gallant lady, Ruby Yoshino Schaar. It is hard to part with one's vision of the past in favor of new discoveries. They belong so much to the heart than the mind. Ruby's sacrifice is a graceful gift for generations to come.

First Hayashi law scholarship to be given at Judge Marutani testimonial

By ALLEN OKAMOTO
PHILADELPHIA—The first recipient of the newly-established JACL-Thomas Hayashi Memorial Law Scholarship will be recognized in conjunction with the Philadelphia JACL testimonial dinner for Judge William Marutani on Saturday, Sept. 18 at the Warwick Hotel here.

The $500 scholarship, while administered by an Eastern District Council committee, is available nationally to a JACLer (or whose parents belong to JACL) or an Asian American accepted for admission to an accredited law school in the U.S.

Marutani, the first East Coast Japanese American appointed to the bench, serves the Court of Common Pleas in Philadelphia. He was sworn in June 1975.

Because of limited seating, the testimonial dinner committee, co-chaired by Dr. Tom Tamaki and Mike Masaoka, is accepting the first 300 reservations for the semi-formal event. Tickets are $15 per person.

Other Eastern District Council chapters and guests are being invited. Gov. Milton Shapp will be the main speaker.

On the committee are: Kaz Horita, Dr. Tamaki, speaker; Allen Okamoto, treasurer; Kusan Kuroda, gifts; Gary Oye, printing; Hiroshi and Gracie Ueyehara, special invite; Grace Horita, Marion Tamaki, invite and dec.

Folklife Festival

WASHINGTON—The Washington, D.C. JACL will again have a food booth during the Smithsonian Folklife Festival between Aug. 11-15.

As the chapter's biggest fund-raiser of the year and the most demanding in terms of manpower, chairman Joe Hirata (933-6817) and Tom Zerick (780-4814) anticipate full cooperation.

Gardena Valley's JACL queen

Laurie Nakahara is congratulated as Miss Gardena Valley JACL by her parents (at right) and Assemblyman Paul Bannal. A commercial art major at Cal State Long Beach, she is 20 years old, 5 ft. 4 and will vie for the 1976 Nisei Week queen honors.

Visbal said the FY 1975 report was prepared on the basis of what was spent with no thought toward the new biennial budget. And as the record keeping system improves with notation of performance against the budget, so that on a timely basis it can be determined where the revenue is coming from and where it is going throughout the year, chapters can also determine whether income is coming in as projected and decisions can be made accordingly.

Perhaps this can be computerized—but that is further down the road, Visbal thought. Hoshiyama said he asked the question because he was aware of the bureaucracy inherent in big organizations and he thought it important for the chapters to secure the financial information in as simple form as possible in order to render decisions. Visbal agreed that that was key point to strive for.

Monthly Statements

Dr. Paul Ellis, state budget analyst in the past and Puyallup Valley delegate, asked whether monthly financial statements for FY 1975 might be reviewed to get a better handle.

Visbal said it would be difficult overall but major expenses in the unrestricted funds could be plotted out monthly. Since it was not done, Visbal was unable to estimate how much more time would be involved, though it would not be difficult if it were just for general unrestricted funds.

Without a monthly breakdown, Ellis felt it would be difficult to project into the future. Seasonal curves would not be known otherwise.

The general ledger, Visbal said, is being kept more currently for FY 1976.

The motion to adopt the financial report was made after a 90-minute discussion and carried with the understanding that additional information and data would be furnished the chapters immediately.

A five-minute recess was called as the 1st half of the current FY 1976 financial report was distributed.

FY 1976—First Half

The FY 1976 first half financial report (Oct. 1, 1975—Mar. 31, 1976) was adopted without discussion.

Sugiyama said the Budget as shown was reviewed in August, 1975, by the EXECOM after it was determined revenue was not coming as projected by the 1974 convention, which had hoped for income of $562,000. Sugiyama anticipated ending in the black for FY 1976, provided JACL stays within the new budget of $480,734 and there are no unanticipated expenses. Projection calls for a 123,000 excess. Nearly 70% ($343,168) of the JACL income was received by Mar. 31 while 52% ($253,831) was expended during the first half of the year.

The FY 1976 first half summary follows:

Questions

Richard Yamauchi of San Fernando Valley noted some line items (printing—general, 160%; office supplies at Washington Office, 181%; office supplies at So. Calif. office, 127%) had exceeded what was budgeted and asked Sugiyama if there was any policy about overrides.

"One of the problems facing the designers of the budget was to be realistic. It is difficult to tell these office they can't do it when we know there are other funds which would not be used but available if shifted," Sugiyama explained.

This concluded the financial reports but the give and take of the new budget was continuing in district caucuses and special meetings of the district governors for remainder of the week till it was presented at the Friday session.

Tuesday Conclusion

The first session Tuesday (June 22) concluded with Jim Murakami announcing where the workshops on Policy Statements for the remainder of the afternoon would be.

Each workshop was expected to review the draft statements and submitted a policy to be adopted by the National Council for guidance during the coming biennium, Murakami said.

Fire program areas were up for discussion: (1) Education, (2) Elderly, (3) Political Education, (4) Public Education, and (5) Youth.

Sugiyama announced the National Board would resume its session at 9 p.m.

JAPANESE COMMUNITY TO BOLSTER NISEI VET PARADE ON STATE ST.

CHICAGO—It will be a sight to behold—graceful Japanese dancers in kimono following men in Army khaki, Scusa marches intermingled with Japanese overtures, drum beats and rhythmic steps in disciplined cadence, along with Issei men and women parading with American flags fluttering—all will pass in review in Chicago's State Street for the Nisei Veterans Reunion parade scheduled for Saturday July 24.

Kings, astronauts, the mayor of Dublin, the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, the Medinah Black Horse Troop, and even Santa Claus have all paraded on that great street. The city is a blend of many nationalities, and nearly all have marched on State Street, but Chicago has never seen a parade sponsored by the Japanese community.

As befits the occasion, chairmen Jack Iseda, Al Swiderski and their committee are furiously contacting organizations in the city and elsewhere to ensure a memorable parade. So far, many organizations have responded enthusiastically, and the committee is hopeful that the entire community will jump on the bandwagon.

All Nisei veterans will have the chance to do their stuff and strut, ride, walk or floor in the parade. Perhaps Koichi Matsumoto, Legion member and World War I veteran, will lead members of the 100th Battalion and 442nd RCT by units, then vets of the Korean and Vietnam conflicts.

Hawaii Congresswoman Patsy Mink will join the parade; hopefully Congressman Spark Matsunaga and Defense Secretary Donald H. Rumsfeld will also arrive in time to join the throng, and with General Mark Clark 5th Army Commander of World War II serving, as grand marshal.

Other national figures will participate in the reunion July 22-25, including former middleweight boxing champion Tony Zale, now a physical fitness and youth worker during the Sayonara Ball at the Conrad Hilton Sunday night. Mike Masaoka has been announced as the toastmaster of the Sayonara Banquet, which anticipates a turnout of 1,500, and Secretary of Defense Rumsfeld as main speaker.

Gen. Clark is scheduled to address the opening day dinner July 22. Rep. Mink is Saturday luncheon speaker at the Chicago-Sheraton, reunion headquarters.

Twin Cities all set for MIS vet reunion

MINNEAPOLIS—Rep. Spark Matsunaga, will be keynote speaker at the Military Intelligence Service Nisei veterans reunion dinner dance on Sunday, July 18, at the Sheraton-Ritz. The festivities are a prelude to the 1976 reunion later in the week at Chicago.

Besides a tour of the Twin Cities' Camp Savage and Fort Snelling (where the MIS school was located during WW2), there will be a dedication of a Japanese garden at Normandale Community College on Sunday afternoon.

Reservations for the dinner dance are being accepted by: Kiyoshi Ishibashi, 197 Prescott St., St. Paul, Minn. 55107. Pkg Deal: $20 per person.
