JACL Fund-raiser Benefits Textbook Revision Campaign

SAN FRANCISCO — A campaign to revise all California textbooks to reflect passage of the Japanese American bill, H.R. 442, will benefit from proceeds generated by the San Francisco JACL Chapter's Oct. 29 fund-raiser. The fashion show and luncheon will feature the designs of Janice Lee at the Hotel Nikko.

Formed by the San Francisco Chapter, the California Textbook Revision Campaign committee aims to incorporate the Nikkei camp experience into all California textbooks and to correct books already listing the internment with the information provided by H.R.

The committee notes that books used in many unified school districts present the evacuation and relocation of Japanese Americans during WW2 with the perspective that the actions were justified by "military necessity." H.R 442, based on the findings of the Commission on Wartime Relocation and Internment of Civilians, states that the reasons behind the government's decision were motivated "largely by racial prejudice, wartime hysteria, and a failure of political leadership."

The committee also notes that 1988 is an important year to complete the campaign because California textbooks are revised every six years and other states use them as an example for the content of their own textbooks.

Tickets for the fund-raiser are priced at $35 each if purchased by Oct. 15; thereafter, they are $40 each and can be obtained by contacting Frances Morioka during the day at (415) 931-6633, or Char Doi during the evening at (415) 776-0723.

First Asian EEOC Commissioner Renominated for Another Term

By Rita Takahashi

WASHINGTON — U.S. Supreme Court Justice Antonin Scalia appeared at the old Executive Office Building on Oct. 7 to swear Joy Cherian in as a commissioner of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC). The event was followed by a festive reception of informal speeches and discussion.

Cherian originally came to the commission when he filled an unexpired Nov. 5, 1987. When this term was almost expired, President Reagan announced on March 24, 1988, that he was renominating Cherian for a full five-year term.

The U.S. Senate, after much delay, ultimately confirmed Reagan's nominee on Sept. 23. Cherian, the first and only EEOC commissioner of Asian ancestry will now serve until June 30, 1993.

Born in India, Cherian is a naturalized U.S. citizen who received his master's and Ph.D. (International Law) degrees at Catholic University in Washington, D.C. In addition, he received a Master of Comparative Law (American Practice, 1978) from George Washington University's Law Center.

In his full-term capacity, Cherian will join four other EEOC commissioners in dealing with equal employment opportunity policies and approving litigation that the EEOC takes on. This commission is responsible for enforcing Title VII of the 1964 Civil Rights Act, which prohibits employment discrimination based on race, color, sex, national origin and religion.

EEOC must also enforce the Age Discrimination in Employment Act, which prohibits discrimination against persons 40 years of age or older, and the Equal Pay Act, which prohibits federal employment discrimination against persons with handicaps.

During the "swearing in" event, Cherian said that his appointment and confirmation would not have been possible without the support from the Asian American community. He also expressed the desire to work cooperatively with the community to successfully achieve the missions of the EEOC.

According to Cherian, his position is "... not just a job. It is a mission... a mission to fight against discrimination in the workplace." He then pledged to uphold the principles behind EEOC, and "... the rights of 243 million people in this country."

'Funny Fact' an Exaggeration?

By George Johnston

National Publication of the Japanese American Citizens League

LOS ANGELES — An item touted as a "funny fact" in an article which appeared in the September issue of Learning magazine is beginning to look as if it was an exaggeration of an actual incident.

The article, "U.S. History Trivia: Stranger Than Fiction" by Patricia Lee Holt, contained an item which stated that during WW2, comic actress Lucille Ball picked up radio signals from a "secret Japanese radio station" which was "operating underground in Hollywood." The article was intended to make students interested in American history.

A copy of the article was sent to the Pacific Southwest District JACL office by a Los Angeles-area school teacher. PSW Regional Director John Saito sent a letter to the magazine asking for more information on the item. He was concerned about the veracity of the article since the magazine, which has a circulation of 300,000, could be spreading misinformation about Japanese Americans to students if the story is incorrect or incomplete. Saito also mailed a letter to Lucille Ball Productions to see if the story could be verified.

In a phone conversation with Tom Watson, publicity coordinator for Lucille Ball, Pacific Citizen learned that Ball's office received the letter from Saito and that they will ask Ball about the story after she catches up with some other work. According to Watson, who did have some recollection of a similiar story, "She told the story a few times that during the war, she had some dental work done and could pick up things she couldn't hear before."

Watson said that another visit to her dentist corrected the problem and that the dentist confirmed that there have been cases of persons picking up radio signals from fillings. Although he still has to check with Ball to make sure, he thinks that the signals were "Morse code." "I never heard it specifically that it was a secret Japanese radio station," he added. He speculated that perhaps someone years ago heard Ball recount the story on a talk show and embellished it. As for where the story came from, Watson said, "I don't know the ultimate source."

In the meantime, Saito is awaiting a reply from Holt, author of the book George Washington Didn't Have a Middle Name, from which the article was based. His letters to Learning were forwarded by the magazine to the Citadel Press, publishers of the book, which is contacting Holt.

Firms Not Sensitive to U.S. Blacks, Says Caucus

By Laurie Mochidome

WASHINGTON — Japanese companies doing business in the U.S. must show more sensitivity in their treatment of racial minorities, the Black Congressional Caucus recently asserted.

The caucus examined the impact of Japanese products and corporate practices on the Black American community at an Oct. 6 hearing spurred by outrage over the distribution of Sanrio, Inc.'s "Little Black Sambo" toys.

The hearing, said caucus chair Rep. Mervyn Dymally (D-Calif.) in a later interview with Pacific Citizen, was "an attempt to send a message to Japanese corporations that their products lack responsibility.

"... The Japanese firms are doing business in the U.S. They have Hispanic and Black consumers and they are totally insensitive and indifferent," said Dymally. "It is time they sit with Americans, with the Black Congressional Caucus."

A Letter of Apology

Although Sanrio, Inc. did not send a representative to the hearing, Dymally expressed satisfaction with the company's response to the concerns raised by the caucus. The company Continued on page 5

Diablo Valley Holding Redress Forum

SAN FRANCISCO — The Diablo Valley JACL Chapter has scheduled an open forum on the subject of redress/reparation for Oct. 30, from 2 to 4 p.m., at the Walnut Creek Intermediate School, 2425 Walnut Blvd., Walnut Creek.

Entitled "From the American Nightmare to the American Promise," the forum is open to the public free of charge and will address questions stemming from the enactment of Japanese American redress bill, H.R. 442, which was signed by President Reagan on Aug. 10. The chapter is bringing together board members of the JACL Legislative Education Committee (JACL-LEC), which spearheaded the

Onizuka Family Watches Successful Launch of Discovery

CAPE CANAVERAL — Relatives of the late astronaut Ellison Onizuka watched the successful launch of the space shuttle Discovery Sept. 29. His widow, Lorna Onizuka, watched the launch from Houston's Johnson Space Center. Mitsue Onizuka, Ellison's mother, viewed the launch on TV from from her home in Kona, Hawaii

Observing from the Kennedy Space Center in Florida was Claude Onizuka, 39, brother of the late astronaut. He was the only family member to attend the launch in person since other family members reportedly thought it would be too painful. "It was a real nice launch. Everything went smoothly," he said. "We all hoped and prayed for the best." He sent an Aloha package of Kona coffee, macadamia nuts and pineapples from Hawaii to NASA's mission control, something Ellison Onizuka did before his first space shuttle flight in January 1985.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Hara Loses Democratic Race for State Treasurer

SEATTLE — City Treasurer Lloyd Hara lost in his race to win the Democratic nomination for state treasurer when he was defeated by State Representative Dan Grimm in the Sept. 20 primaries. Hara, who will retain his present position, was hoping to become the first Nikkei elected to state office. He fell short of his goal when he garnered 227,339 votes to Grimm's 241,729.

JA Olympian Results

SEOUL — Eric Sato of Santa Monica, Calif., a 22-year-old backcourt substitute for the U.S. men's volleyball team, won a gold medal for his participation in the XXIV Olympiad. Sato's winning team was guided by older brother Gary, who served as assistant coach. Kevin Asano, 25, of San Jose, Calif., received the silver medal in judo. Other Japanese American Olympians of the '88 Summer Games were Liane Sato, 24, a backrow specialist for the U.S. women's volleyball team, and Rod Oshita of Palos Verdes Estates, Calif., a two-time Olympian and goalie for the U.S. men's team handball. Peter Westbrook of Newark, N.J., a Bronze medalist in the 1984 Games, and George Nonomura, 29, of San Francisco, respectively competed in the men's saber fencing division and in the men's division of foil fencing.

Bush Appoints Asian Americans

WASHINGTON — Vice President George Bush, Republican presidential candidate, appointed several Asian Americans to lead the Asian Americans for George Bush Coalition. Among the Japanese Americans included are Steve Nakashima of San Jose, Calif.; Eunice Sato, of Long Beach; Richard Takechi of Omaha; and Rep. Patricia Saiki of Hawaii. Other Asian Americans appointed are Dr. John Tsu; Anna Chennault; Dr. Kyo Jhin; Wendy Gramm; Sherwin T.S. Chan; Melecio Jacaban; and Krishna Srinivasa. Bush said, "Whoever said the American Dream is dead is not familiar with the Asian Americans. They exemplify that dream, with their high standards for family and their entrepreneurial spirit they have attained that dream."

JAs in Floriculture Industry Theme of JANM Event

LOS ANGELES — This year's gala dinner and dance promises to be the biggest, most elegant and exciting fund-raising event yet for JANM. Set for Nov. 5, the dinner-dance will be held at the Spruce Goose facilities in Long Beach, where guests will be entertained by the world famous Dorsey Orchestra.

Following the theme "Community in Bloom," the evening will also serve as a celebration of the Japanese American contribution to the floricultural industry, which produces most of the cut flowers in the United States.

Since the 1880s, Japanese Americans have been pioneers and leaders in this industry, influencing its growth and development while earning the respect of their peers. Representatives of the San Francisco-based California Flower Market and the Southern California Flower Market of Los Angeles are among those expected to attend.

In addition to live music, dinner guests will also be treated to two audio-

Nominations Now Being Accepted for JACL-LEC Board

Nominations are now open for three at-large positions on the JACL-LEC board of directors, announced JACL-LEC Chair Jerry Enomoto. The positions will be up for election at the end of November.

The JACL-LEC, which has been credited as one of the organizations responsible for assisting passage of the redress legislation, is continuing its responsibility of monitoring the redress appropriations and individual identification processes to assure that the rights and interests of eligible individuals are protected under H.R. 442, now known as Public Law 100-383.

Mollie Fujioka and Peggy Liggett are board members currently serving as representatives of JACL. Although their terms are expiring, they were recommended to continue for another term on the JACL-LEC board at the Sept. 17 meeting of the JACL National Board. Former JACL National President Harry Kajihara's position on the JACL-LEC board has been relin-

Nat'l VFW Resolution Committee Rejects Anti-Redress Compensation Resolutions

CHICAGO — Nisei VFW delegates Harry Tanabe of San Francisco, Jim Mita and Larry Sakamoto, both of Los Angeles and Art Morimitsu of Chicago addressed the National VFW resolution committee meeting where four anti-redress compensation resolutions were presented by VFW delegates from Iowa, New York, North Carolina and Arkansas on Aug. 19, 1988.

The Nisei delegates and a past California department commander spoke to resolution chairman James Currieo, a former national commander, and the controversial resolutions were rejected by the committee and the rejection unanimously approved by the 300 plus delegates.

Currieo was the national VFW commander who issued the controversial anti-redress resolution in 1983, which had been opposed by the 3,000 member California Nisei VFW 14 post coalition and finally retracted that year during the National VFW convention at New Orleans, La.

One anti-resolution, in particular, opposed appropriation for the redress bill which would have been damaging if approved by the National VFW.

It was also reported that resolutions opposing the Manzanar National Park project by California veterans groups had been rejected by American Legion and VFW organizations of California after Nisei VFW and Legion members asked rejection of the controversial resolutions.

250 Get Together at Fresno Reunion

FRESNO, Calif. — A total of 250 delegates participated in the Sept. 23-25 reunion of former Fresno residents during the pre-WW2 period. The convention attracted people from as far away as New York City and Boston. Delegates attended churches of their respective faiths following a group breakfast at the Centre Plaza Holiday Inn in downtown Fresno from Sept. 25. Special hospitality rooms had been set up at the Holiday Inn all day Friday, and were staffed by a volunteer committee.

Highlighting the three-day activity was the presentation of the latest information on redress by Fred Hirasuna at the Sept. 25 banquet. As an official delegate to the recently concluded National JACL Convention at Seattle, Hirasuna was able to narrate on the emotional outcome of the passing of the redress bill into law as signed by President Ronald Reagan.

Hirasuna's special guest at this banquet was Dr. Mae Takahashi, who had also been a JACL delegate to Seattle, and who had flown to Washington, D.C. to witness the signing of this historic document by the president. She is the current governor of the Central California District Council of the JACL.

Included in the roster of delegates who attended the get-together were former Brigadier Imai and Mrs. Imai of the Salvation Army, now retired Brigadier Imai had been instrumental in aiding the Issei in and around Fresno prior to the outbreak of WW2, and his presence at the reunion was acclaimed by a responsive and grateful throng.

Although many participants voiced their hopes for another get-together Morito Nakamoto and Michio Toshiyuki co-chairpersons were non-committal as to the future since the pre-war Nihonmachi residents now are in their mid-seventies and older.

DEATHS

Dr. Herbert T. Hata, 72, of Honolulu died July 7 in Honolulu. UCLA Offering Postdoctoral Fellowships in Japanese American Studies

LOS ANGELES — The Asian American Studies Center at the University of California, Los Angeles has announced its annual competition for postdoctoral fellowships in Japanese American Studies for 1988-89. The fellowships, which are the only ones of their kind in the nation, are funded by the UCLA Alumni and the Friends of Americans of Japanese Ancestry Endowed Chair Program.

The fellowships are intended to encourage the further development of scholarship on the Japanese American experience by both humanists and social scientists. During a nine-month residency at the UCLA Asian American Studies Center, the fellows are expected to undertake research on significant topics in Japanese American Studies and to participate in the teaching and research activities of the

The fellows will also be expected to present research findings at a campus collogium and at a public lecture. Depending on rank and experience, stipends of $18,000-$20,000 will be awarded. Senior scholars are invited to apply for an award to supplement the sabbatical salary provided by their own institutions.

Applicants should send a curriculum vitae, research proposal, and three letters of recommendation by Oct. 31 to: Japanese American Studies Fellowship Competition, c/o Asian American Studies Center, 3232 Campbell Hall, University of California, Los Angeles, CA 90024. The office phone number is (213) 825-2974.

Final selection will be made by Nov. 15. Fellows may begin their residency immediately thereafter.

AADAP Sponsoring 'Creative Images'

LOS ANGELES — Encouraging artistic expression through drug prevention is the main idea behind "Creative Images," a youth program sponsored by the Asian American Drug Abuse Program (AADAP) and Southern California Asian Pacific service clubs.

"Creative Images" will provide high school-aged Asian Pacific youth an outlet to showcase their creative abilities through drama, visual arts, short stories, poetry, music or dance, said Jeanne Azuma, AADAP Prevention Specialist.

Training focusing on individual creative growth, team building, self growth, and understanding substance abuse and the factors that can lead to it, will be followed by community drug-free events organized by each participant and his or her sponsoring organization.

Artistic works from the program will be showcased in the spring of

The program is currently looking for community service clubs willing to sponsor and support a youth through the six-month program starting in December.

"We know there's a number of clubs that want to do something for the community," said Azuma. "We hope to involve adult community leaders on a deeper level by actively supporting this program."

Requirements for club participation include:

-A $250 contribution per youth, which will pay for supplies, trainings and sweatshirts.

-A club liaison, who will be the link between the group and the club for six months. -Support and promotion of "Creative Images" within the community. Participating club liaisons will meet with AADAP staff, and then will have most of November to submit a worthy candidate to represent them.

As for the youth, Azuma said they're looking for 12-15 people from a wide variety of Asian Pacific ethnicities ages 14-17 who demonstrate an interest in creative expression and a desire to work with and educate other youth about the dangers of substance abuse.

Since the group will be ethnically diverse. Azuma also plans to focus on Asian cultural awareness and sensitivity issues such as identity. The goal is to bring different Asian identities together and have the students learn from each other and to create positive feelings about who they are and what they can do for their communities.

For further details, contact either Jeanne Azuma or Canossa Chan before Nov. 4 at AADAP, (213) 293-6284.

EDITORIAL OF THE PACIFIC CITIZEN:

Regaining What Could Have Been

WHAT HAPPENS when a community receives a sudden windfall amounting to hundreds of millions for its answer. amounting to hundreds of millions of dollars? Good question which refers, of course, to payments to Japanese Americans and Japanese Canadians to redress wartime injustices. But the question is not entirely relevant.

In the United States the question loses some of its relevancy because the windfall, expected to amount to more than a billion dollars, will be spread out over a decade. The impact of the money will be dissipated further because it will be distributed to a community that is scattered over the entire nation although the greatest concentration is in Southern California.

Still, undeniably the impact will be substantial. While it is more a solatium than compensation for direct loss, much of it will be spent to redress the damage caused by the Evacuation. Of course $20,000 is not a huge amount to some individuals. On the other hand the money will help to ease the sunset years of the elderly who never were able to recover wartime losses, or to make up for lost time and missed opportunities. No doubt some of it will go to replace outworn furniture, paint a home, install a new roof, pay for better medical insurance—expenses that might not have been burdensome had not the Evacuation cut into earnings.

But substantial amounts no doubt will be diverted to the traditional kinds of giving that is part of the Japanese culture—helping the families of struggling children and grandchildren, giving them small luxuries and assistance with education, gifts the elders had been unable to offer because they lacked the means. It is not likely that much of the money will be spent frivolously.

The situation is somewhat different in Canada. Redress funds amounting to more than $200 million will be distributed in a lump sum among recipients who live primarily in two areas, Vancouver and Toronto. The impact will be substantially greater than in the U.S., particularly since several millions are earmarked for community reconstruction. In view of ethnic traditions, the money is certain to be spent wisely.

In both countries the money is a windfall only in the sense that there was uncertainty as to its availability until, suddenly it appeared. But now, belatedly, it will help create in small measure that which might have been.

NCWNP Activities

The 35-chapter Northern California-Western Nevada-Pacific District Council (NCWNPDC) has anywhere from 9,000 to 10,000 members, with optimism that it will rise higher. The chapters are located in the Greater San Francisco Bay Area; the South Bay; the Pacific Coast; the San Joaquin Valley, Calif.; Reno, Nev.; Hilo and Honolulu, Hawaii; and Tokyo, Japan. In order to "get a handle" on this large area, this governor differentiates the district into eight areas, with three to five chapters in each area. George Kondo staffs the district office, which is located in the National Headquarters building in San Francisco.

District Council Meetings

The district's quarterly council meetings, which are held on Sundays, are hosted by chapters on a rotational basis. For example, 1988 hosts are the Cortez, Watsonville, San Francisco and Gilroy chapters. District executive board meetings are held one month prior to these meetings with the same hosts. These turns come around once every eight to nine years. Often delegates drive four to five hours to attend district council meetings. Despite this, attendance is outstanding, with usually 60 to 70 people in attendance.

The delegates learn first hand about the host chapters; for example, Gilroy fulfills its fund-raising needs for the entire year by running a beef teriyaki booth at the city's annual three-day Garlic Festival. Delegates look forward to attending meetings in different areas; often past meetings are recalled by their location and the lunch that was served.

This past year, orientations for chapter presidents and membership chairs at respective council meetings were well received. No doubt such workshops should be held annually, with the addition of one for the P.C.

New Leadership

The dedication and commitment that many chapter leaders demonstrate to their membership is most impressive. Notwithstanding the concerns of decreasing chapter membership, the impact of a dues raise and the location and development of new leadership, the work is still carried on with great spirit. Take for instance, the Cortez, Florin and Watsonville chapters: They have lined up their presidents for the coming years!

The district sponsorships of participants in the past Washington, D.C. Leadership Conferences have resulted in leaders for the district. The number of Sansei members on the executive board has increased to a majority. A

Japan's rule of Korea is described as

His columns and editorials supplemented intense news coverage about injustice in the best traditions of advocacy journalism. This was not silent acceptance of injustice. If you have doubts about the ability of Japanese Americans to speak up, it will do your heart good to thumb through old copies of this newspaper and see how vigorously and militantly it fought for the rights of Japanese Americans.

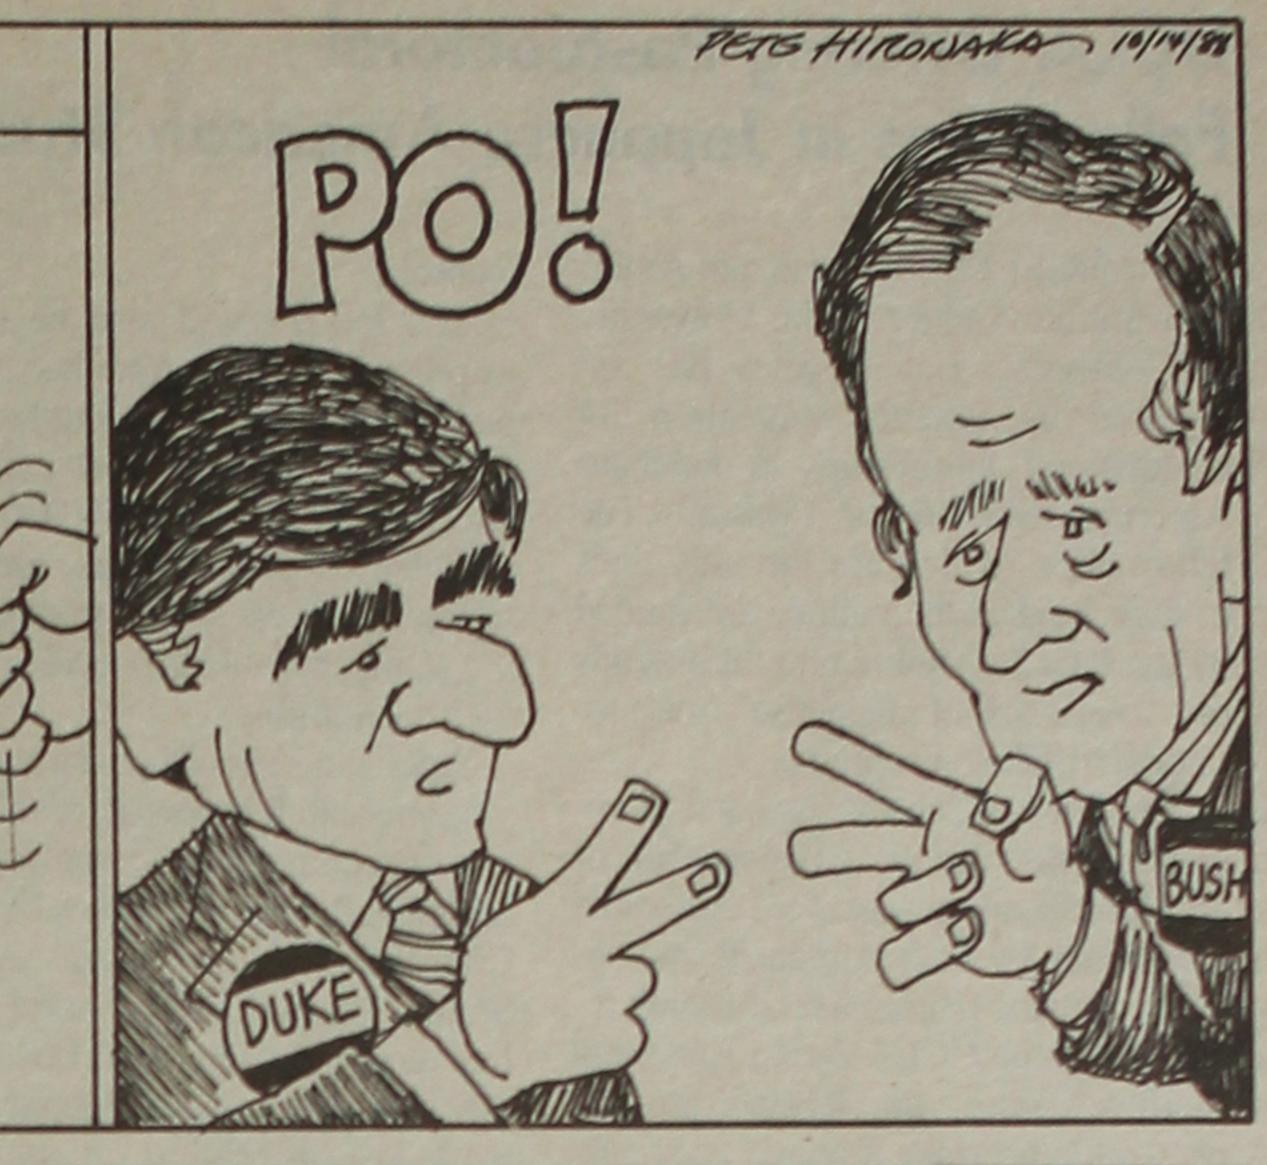

Next, you ought to examine the booklets bearing JACL's imprint now gathering dust in the organization's archives. I hope they are in the archives although I fear that many were tossed out. Published at substantial cost at a time when JACL had little in the way of funds, these booklets told the Japanese American story, protested injustice, urged support for its goals. They were distributed to thousands and no doubt many of them are still in libraries around the country.

Third, ever since the Evacuation was ordered, Japanese Americans have been speaking of their experience in schools, churches, service clubs, study groups, neighborhood round tables. There's no way to determine how many talks were given, but there must have been thousands. This is hardly silent acceptance.

Fourth, JACL's Washington representative, Mike Masaoka, spent more than a decade telling the Japanese American story to members of Congress and other national decision-makers. How else was it possible to win the legislative victories that gave citizenship to the Issei, eliminated racial discrimination in immigration and naturalization laws, outlawed alien land laws, etc., etc., etc.

Fifth, a collection of authoritative books on the Japanese American experience published in the last couple of decades would fill a long library shelf, maybe several shelves. Many were commissioned by JACL's Japanese American Research Project with funds contributed by the public. The record was not hidden; in fact it is remarkably well documented in volumes taken on by some of the nation's leading publishing houses.

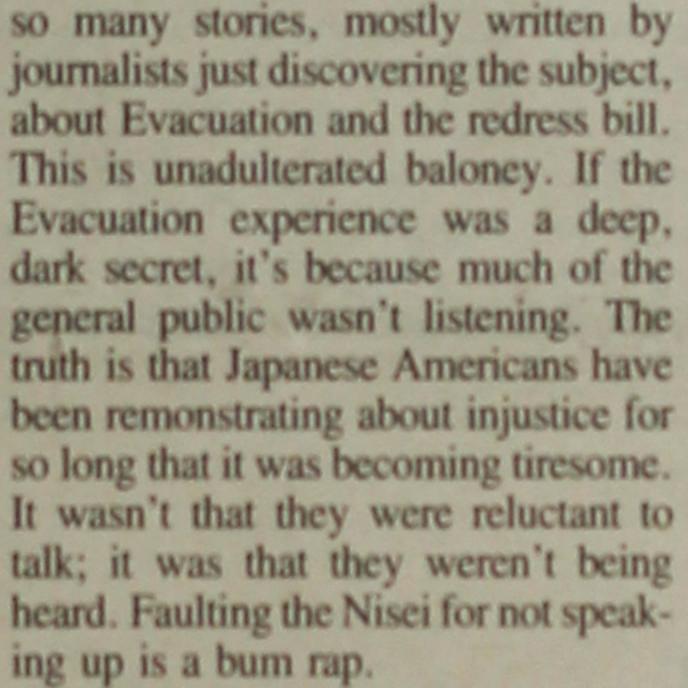

Many individual Japanese Americans understandably have been hesitant about standing on their hind legs and revealing thoughts they prefer to keep to themselves. But it's not necessarily a racial trait for anyone to decline to display his deepest personal hurts in public. There is no Japanese American mystique that keeps them silent. To believe otherwise is to perpetuate offensive stereotypes about the tacitum, stone-faced Oriental who would rather suffer any pain than com-

Excuse me, but I am fed up with the myth that Japanese Americans, de-have been unable to speak out until their traditions kept them from com-

What is the evidence?

Well, for beginners, take a look at the files of the Pacific Citizen. During and after the war years this newspaper, under Larry Tajiri's editorial leadership, was an eloquent voice of protest.

Beat the "Zubon" Off Them

MANY OF YOU undoubtedly enjoy the feature articles carried in the Wall St. Journal. The paper is great in that it not only carries world and national news but also these articles focusing on some esoteric aspect of life that no one else writes about. Seldom do I go back to the stock quotations, and as for "futures," who cares?

Feature articles is where it's at. TODAY'S FEATURE, AND a lot of you out there undoubtedly also read the same item-but for those too busy or who otherwise missed it-today's feature article was entitled: "The Olympic Flame Isn't All That Burns When Foe is Japan" with the subheading "Animosity of Korean Hosts to Former Colonial Ruler Unnerves Japanese Fans."

With such pyrotechnic prose, one is drawn to the flame.

PRECEDED BY SEVERAL years of military ventures into Korea, in 1910 Japan formally annexed Korea, a situation which lasted until 1945 when the Pacific War ended. Knowing little about Korea's history, and never having even set foot in Korea, I can only go by what I read now and then.

According to the Journal article,

"sometimes brutal." One has to have this background to understand the thrust of the feature article under those smoldering headings. IT SEEMS THAT whenever a Japanese contestant is participating in the Olympic games, the Korean spectators cheer on the opponent of the Japanese. Even if the opponent is from a communist country, a political system South Koreans generally abhor, particularly given that nemesis Kim II Sung subscribes to that system. Particularly when it comes to the sport in which the Japanese had long demonstrated their dominance: judo. I haven't watched the judo contests (Did they televise them? If so, at what unpopular hour?), but according to the article, Japan's outstanding star, Shinji Hosokawa, was eliminated by his U.S. opponent, as the Korean audience cheered on the latter.

THE KOREANS ARE determined folks, and in judo their team took more gold medals, leaving the Japanese far behind. The Journal article characterizes this "to use the Japanese word, the Koreans are beating the zubon off their rival in judo." They're doing alright for a country with a population of about one-third of that of Nippon.

"Zubon" did you say? I checked it in my jiten.

THOSE OF YOU who have travelled in the southerly parts of Japanwhich means anything south of Tokyo-have seen citrus trees scattered throughout the steep slopes above the rice fields. These trees bear huge fruit, looking much like grapefruit. They're known as "zabon"—a word which I came across as I strayed in my jiten. "Zabon" was defined as "shaddock"—which sounded to me like some fish or, if not, gobo. Well, it's neither, of course. It is a relative of grapefruit, but I've never seen a Japanese (or anyone else for that matter) eat one. I once bought and peeled one: pulpy without juice. I think Mother Nature was having a joke.

Back to zabon.

IN THE JITEN it's written in hiragana, in another jiten in katakana—a hint that its origin is foreign. I'm not much of a decipherer of dictionaries, but there appeared the kanjifor "butsu" (as in Bukkyo) followed by "jupon". Putting the two together, my surmise is that the Japanese word for "pants" (zubon) is derived from French.

Whether zabon or zubon, it can be sent a formal letter of apology along with assurances that the "racially offensive" products, which bear caricatures of Blacks, had been recalled from most store shelves. The letter promised Sanrio, Inc. would not repeat its "error" in judgement.

The letter also outlined various proposals aimed at promoting greater cultural understanding between Japanese and American children. Suggestions include the formation of a Japan-U.S. Friendship Program to expose Japanese children to the multi-racial diversity of American society; a "little ambassadors program," which would invite six American children to Japan; and the company's donation of Christmas gifts to disadvantaged Black American children.

Sanrio, Inc. additionally announced its plans to follow-up on the objectives by scheduling a meeting between company representatives and caucus members, an idea supported by Dymally and businessman Earl Graves, chair of the Black Business Council.

Corporate Practices

In testimony before the caucus on Japanese corporate practices regarding the Black American community, Graves had stated that although Japanese firms "want the business of Black Americans," they "are not willing to do business with the Black business community to a significant extent."

Among Graves' claims were the resistance of Japanese automobile manufacturers to grant Blacks dealerships and the failure of Japanese firms to strong commitment to writing by significantly advertise in Black-owned media targeting the Black consumer market and do business with Black insurance companies.

Unless Japanese corporations take steps to improve their relationship with racial minority groups, said Graves and Dymally, they could face "a legislative remedy."

Black American leaders, they reported, have already reacted to the "Black Sambo" incident by announcing their push for a "Buy America" campaign, which boycotts the purchase of Japanese products during the upcoming holiday season. They are also requesting congressional hearings and meetings with Japanese government officials and corporate leaders.

For the Record

Before she resigned from her post on Sept. 30, Grayce Uyehara was JACL-LEC's first executive director. She did not replace John Tateishi when she first assumed the post three years ago. Tateishi was the National JACL Redress chair. (See P.C., Oct. 7.)

Women's Anthology Seeks Submissions

NEW YORK — The Greenfield Review Press is accepting submissions for a cross-cultural women's anthology, especially fiction written by women which deals with the interaction between Asian and Western cultures from a variety of cultural perspectives.

Since its inception in 1970, the Greenfield Review Press has had a women and ethnic minorities and has published the work of such writers as Leslie Silko, Marilyn Chin, and Gary Soto. In 1984, the press released Breaking Silence, an Anthology of Contemporary Asian American Poets, which won an American Book Award that year from the Before Columbus Foundation.

Writers submitting work for consideration to the current anthology should send two copies of each story, which must be typed and double-spaced. Previously published work is acceptable as long as permission to reprint is included.

All entries must be accompanied by a short biographical statement, including publishing credits, and a SASE. Each author selected will receive $20 and two copies of the book.

Send manuscripts to: Sylvia Watanabe or Carol Bruchac, The Greenfield Review Press, 2 Middle Grove Road, Greenfield Center, N.Y. 12833.

district leadership conference held this past spring further demonstrated that new leaders will come from these programs. The newest leadership challenge will be to host the upcoming Tri-District Conference with CCDC and PSW in Reno in April of 1989.

In the National Forensics Competition, the district-sponsored contestants have placed first in both the "prepared" and "extemporaneous" divisions at the '86 Chicago and the '88 Seattle Conventions. This is another source for future leadership.

The district can take great pride in its role in the long redress campaign and rejoice in the happy outcome. In the four years of chapter/membershipbased pledge drives, the district chapters came through 100 percent.

In addition, even more dollars were raised through individual and chapter solicitations for JACL-LEC. Area coordinators and chapter redress chairs have also organized letter-writing campaigns. Areas and chapters are now being encouraged to hold public forums to acknowledge those who helped in the struggle for justice, and also to help inform the JA community state treasurer. My last official function as NCWNPDC governor is to attend Placer's 60th Anniversary/Goodwill Dinner on Oct. 15. I look forward to it.

in addressing the redress law.

On a personal level, I look back with great satisfaction in having testified as district governor in the Sacramento Assembly and Senate hearings as part of the coalition that defeated the confirmation of Rep. Dan

Lungren for the position of California

Fujioka's Mollie term as expires in NCWNPDC governor November.
