N.Y. redistricting plan is rejected

NEW YORK—The Justice Department has ruled that the New York City Council proposed redistricting plan is "legally unenforceable" since it violates the Voting Rights Act.

The Asian American Legal Defense and Education Fund (AALDEF) and the Latino community has opposed the council's plan to link District 1 in Lower Manhattan with Chinatown, arguing that the plan would discriminate against Asian Americans. They believe that an Asian-Latino district on the Lower East Side would best reflect the substantial growth in Asian American population to the east of Chinatown and provide a stronger voice for Asian American concerns.

"Asian Americans will not be used as the Districting Commission's excuse for disenfranchising Latinos on the Lower East Side," said Margaret Fung, AALDEF executive director. "There was overwhelming support for an Asian-Latino district among Chinatown residents since it will allow both groups to work in coalition to elect a candidate of their choice."

Manzanar bill passes Senate

WASHINGTON, D.C.—The bill that would make Manzanar a national historic site was passed July 25 by the Senate subcommittee on National Parks, Public Lands and Forests, according to Sue Kunitomi Embrey, chairwoman of the Manzanar committee.

The bill, S 621, a companion bill to HR 543, now goes on to the Senate committee on Energy and Natural Resources, to meet some time after summer recess.

Anti-Asian violence book ready for JACL chapters

SAN FRANCISCO—By mid-August or so JACL chapters will be armed with an important document that will help them to understand and address the growing problem of anti-Asian violence throughout the country.

Walk with Pride: Taking Steps to Address Anti-Asian Violence was researched and written by Leslie Hatamiya on a CORO Foundation fellowship for JACL.

The publication is a handbook that provides useful information on the whole spectrum and phenomenon of racism, violence, and hate crimes.

Hatamiya begins with a historical perspective that shows that anti-Asian violence goes back to the 1840s. She examines its causes and talks about the legal system and what laws exist to protect individuals from hate crimes.

Another chapter is devoted to a profile of Asian Pacific Americans that focuses on the stereotypes and myths that still exist today.

Perhaps the most important chapter covers the kinds of actions chapter officials and individuals can take to fight back.

Hatamiya provides information on community resources and shows how to respond to specific incidents, and what can be done to educate the Asian Pacific American community, as well as the public at large.

Two other important areas are tips on how to work with legislative organizations and the criminal and civil justice system.

Names and addresses of model programs for police and district attorney and responses to hate crimes are also invaluable.

The handbook's director of resources lists governmental agencies, other national organizations and individuals who may be of assistance, and other publications and articles that may be useful to chapter members.

The handbook will also be distributed to other civil rights organizations, attorney general offices, police departments, district attorney offices and other governmental agencies.

Loo case conviction applauded

The July 15 conviction of Lloyd Piche on civil rights violations in the Jim Loo case has been applauded by the Asian American community.

Bill Yoshino, JACL national director, said that the conviction "represents the first federal prosecution of anti-Asian violence since the Vincent Chin case in 1983. We are extremely gratified and heartened by the final outcome of this case. Unlike the Vince Chin case, justice was duly served this time."

Piche was convicted on one count of conspiracy to violate civil rights and seven counts of aiding and abetting violations of federally protected activities. He will be sentenced Oct. 15.

Piche's brother Robert had already been convicted of second degree murder and sentenced to 37 years in prison for the killing of Loo outside a Raleigh, N.C., pool hall in 1989. Lloyd Piche, however, had originally gotten off with a two-month sentence on misdemeanor charges.

A coalition of Asian American groups, led by the Organization of Chinese Americans (OCA) and including JACL, pressed the Department of Justice for prosecution of Lloyd Piche under federal civil rights laws. Commenting on the decision, Daphne Kwok, OCA executive director, said, "This verdict provides an important precedent for prosecuting future hate related offenses."

In the trial held in Wilmington, N.C., the prosecution brought forward more than 15 witnesses who repeatedly testified that Lloyd

JACL National Youth Council reorganizes, plans conference

The National Youth Council of JACL has begun a reorganization process with the immediate goal of establishing a youth representative from each district.

The group met recently in Los Angeles to discuss wider representation within JACL and to plan an upcoming conference tentatively set for November 8-10 in Los Angeles.

According to Trish Murakawa, national youth chairwoman, only five of the eight districts have youth representatives. "There hasn't been a National Youth Council meeting in years until now. We need representatives in every district. We need to make an outreach effort to youth and students, to break down the stereotype that JACL is solely a Nisei organization."

In the meeting, council members discussed the concern that they were not accorded the respect and status as full-fledged members of JACL at the chapter,

JACL acts on restaurant racial incident

The Pacific Southwest District office of JACL is planning to issue a position paper on the recent Red Onion restaurant incident in which three Japanese women were harassed or assaulted.

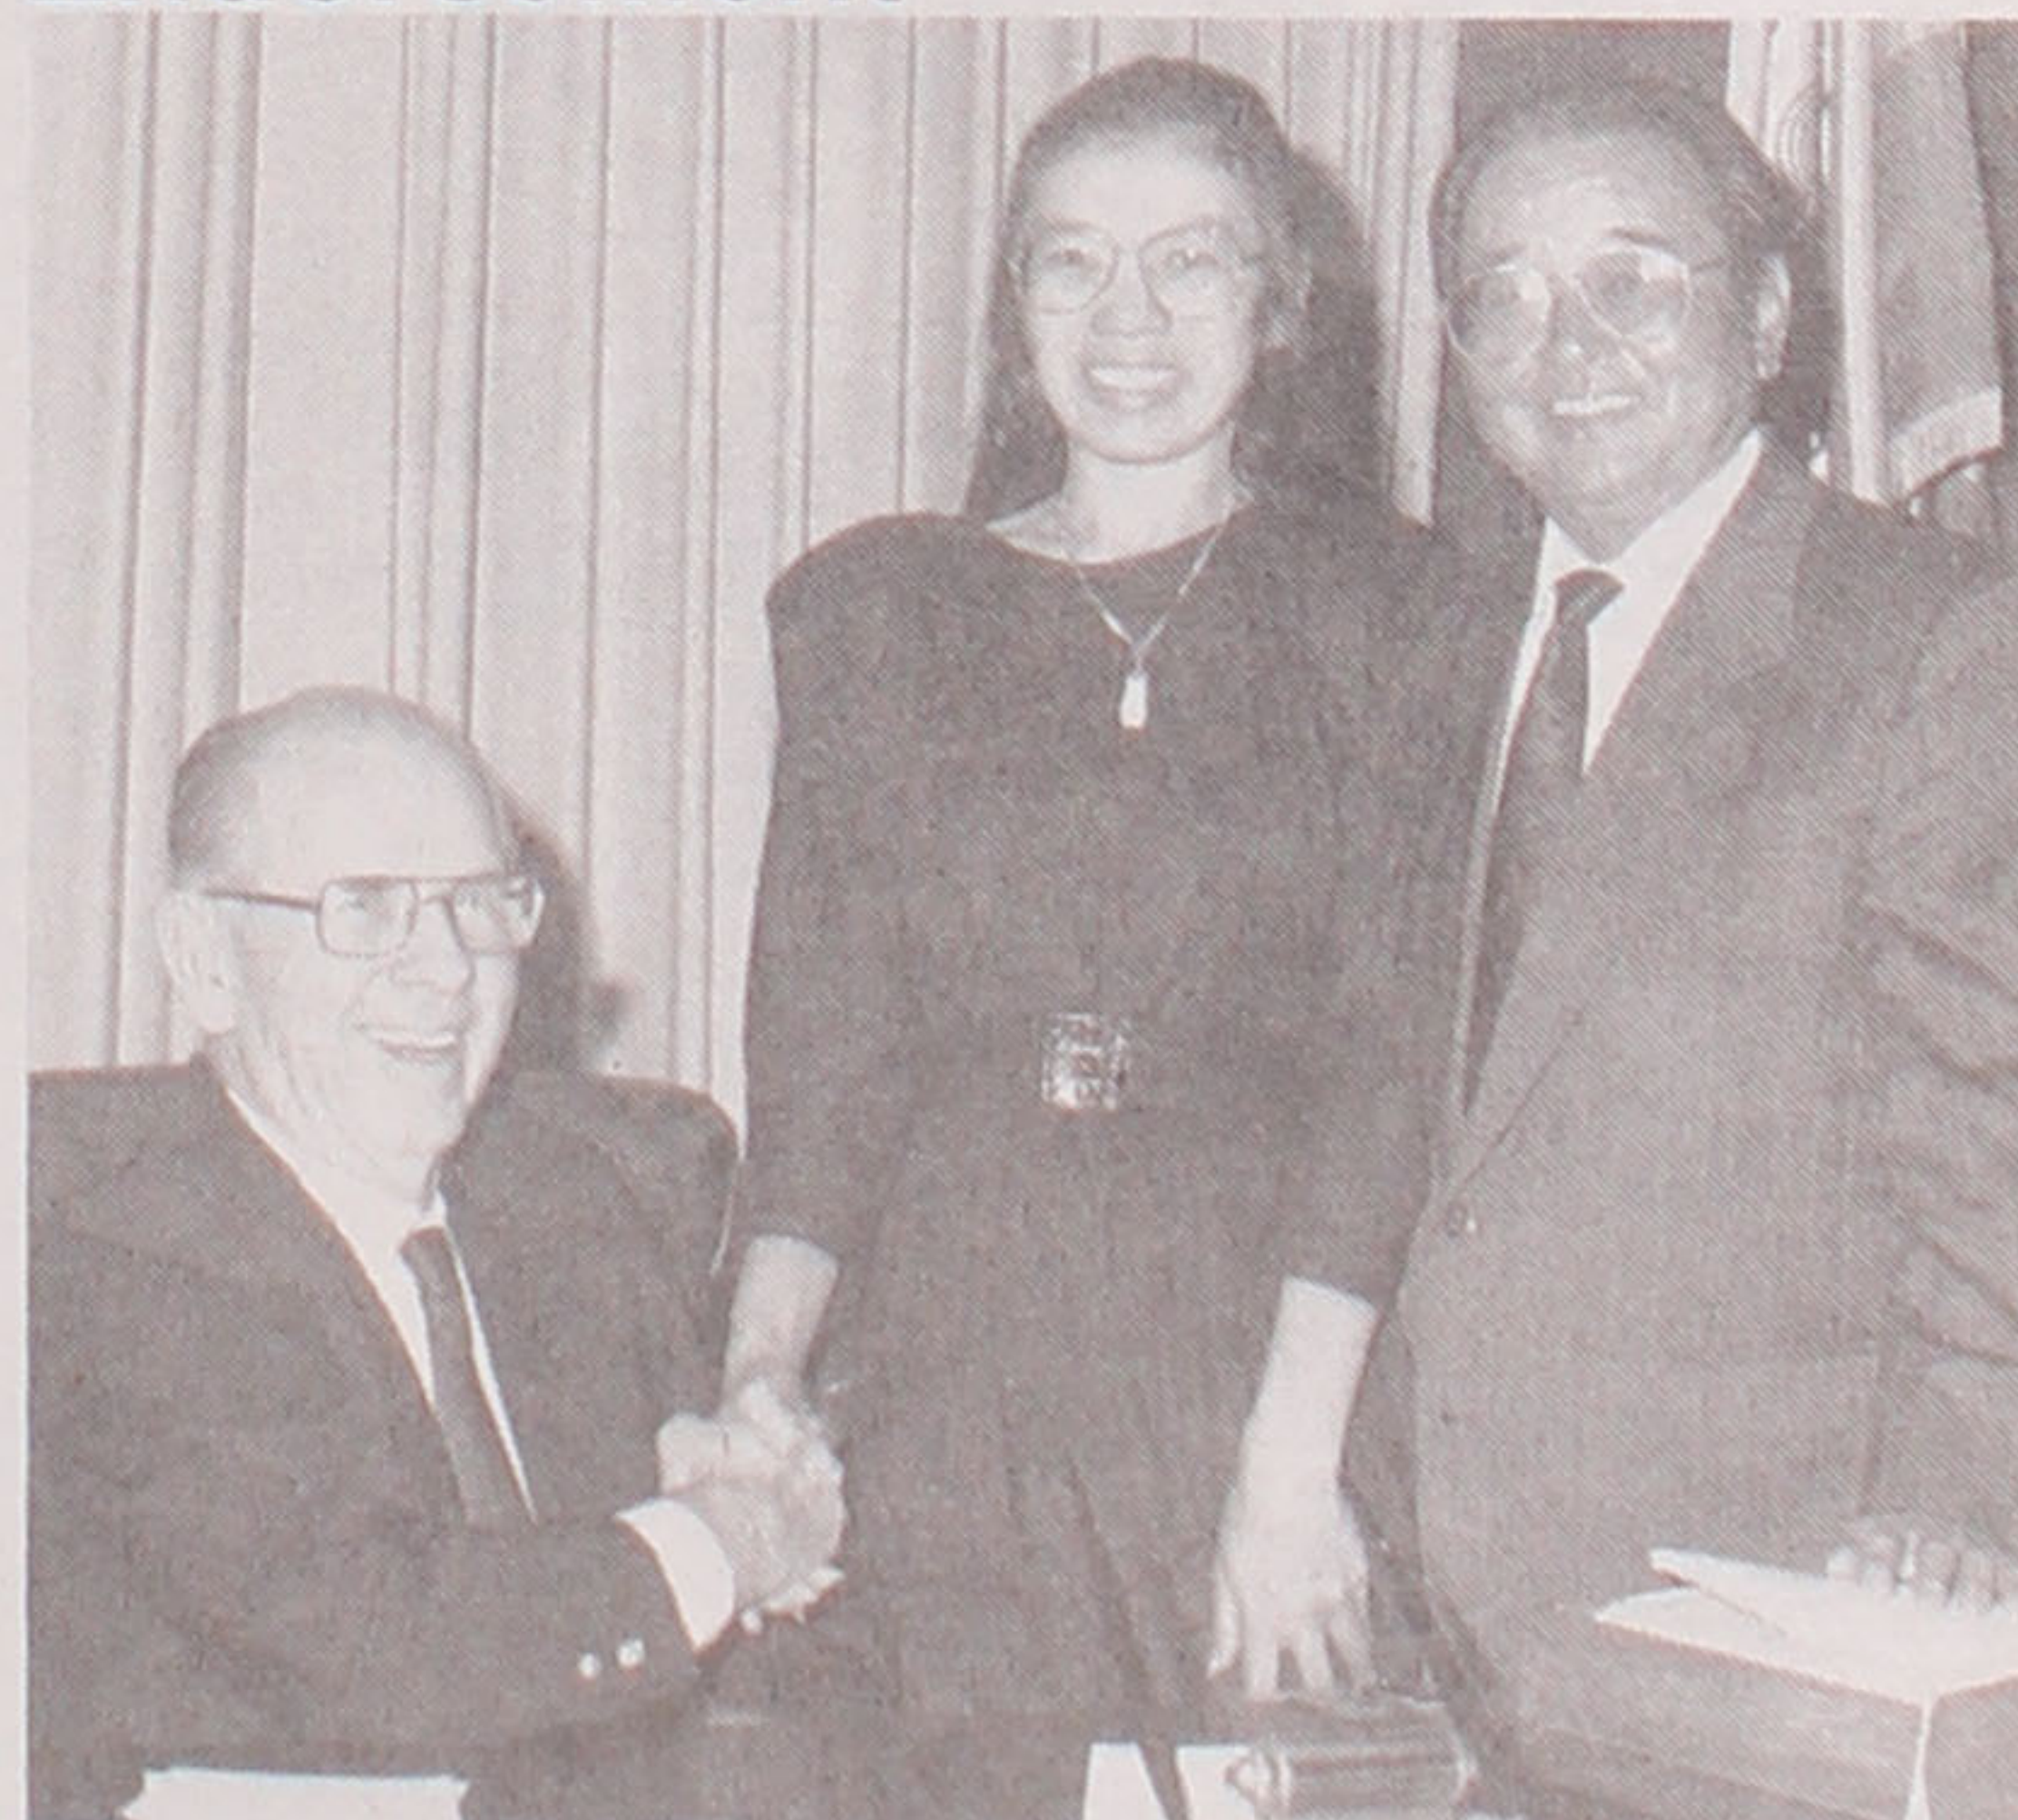

The three women, Katsumi Nakashita, Mariko Okono and Yuko Toyama, were allegedly accosted by a group of Caucasian women on June 15 at the Red Onion restaurant in Huntington Beach, Calif. According to reports a scuffle ensued because one or more of the Caucasian women insisted that Nakashita stop talking in Japanese.

Restaurant officials seemed reluctant to do anything about the incident, Nakashita said.

In addition to issuing a statement against the Red Onion restaurant, the JACL regional office is working with the Asian Pacific Legal Center for other future actions or investigations, according to Jimmie Tokeshi, regional director.

Endorsement

Sharon Mae Yung Lowe, candidate for Los Angeles City Council in the Aug. 13 election, visits with L.A. Supervisor Kenneth Hahn (left) and his assistant, Mas Fukai. Hahn said, "She has integrity and would be a champion of the little people, fighting for affordable housing, transportation and the preservation of park land in urban areas." If elected, Lowe would be the first Asian American woman on the council.

Piche was an active instigator and conspirator in the events leading to Jim Loo's death.

Yoshino added that "given the alarming rise in acts of anti-Asian violence that have occurred nationally, the conviction of Lloyd Piche becomes very opportune. It sends a clear and resounding signal to all would-be perpetrators that violence and brutality based on hate will not be tolerated and will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law."

Rep. Robert T. Matsui said that "although nothing can compensate injustices suffered by Jim Loo, these verdicts provide some hope that justice can be served and that civil rights violations can be successfully prosecuted. The greater victory is in the Asian American community's overwhelming coordinated response to the Loo murder. If not for the efforts of our community, the atrocities committed against Jim Loo and other Asian Americans in this case would have gone unpunished."

Redress workshops set for Northwest

The latest round of redress workshops will be held in Seattle and Spokane, Wash., and Portland, Ore.

ORA representatives will provide answers to questions on individual case status and required documentation.

Thus far, ORA has conducted more than 30 workshops, handling some 2,500 redress recipient concerns, according to Robert K. Bratt, ORA administrator.

Individuals in the second payment group, those born between July 1, 1920, and Dec. 31, 1927, are encouraged to attend. Recipients should bring a birth certificate and a recent bank statement or utility bill which reflects their name and current address. In cases in which a person's name has changed through marriage since internment, a marriage certificate should be brought as verification of the name change.

Here is the schedule:

● Saturday, Sept. 14, 10 a.m., Nisei Veterans Hall, 1212 S. King St., Seattle

● Sunday, Sept. 15, 1-5 p.m., Oregon Buddhist Church, 3720 S.E. 34th Ave., Portland.

● Monday, Sept. 16, 4-8 p.m., Spokane Buddhist Church, 927 S. Perry St., Spokane. ☐

News

ORA responds to JACL suggestions for redress process

The Office of Redress Administration (ORA), in response to suggestions and concerns from the JACL/LEC board, has provided answers to many questions surrounding the redress process.

Here are the JACL/LEC issues and the ORA responses:

JACL/LEC: Why does ORA have to ask for documentations more than once? For instance, when a claimant verifies his/her eligibility with documentation once, why must he or she send in the same documents again to verify being an heir? Can the office take the documents from the hard file, copy, and transfer to the needed file?

ORA: In many cases, ORA attempts to use documents in one case to assist us in verifying another case. For example, we often will waive the need for a marriage certificate in an heir case where one was already provided by the heir for his/her own case. We will continue to do this whenever possible to avoid requesting duplicate documents.

JACL/LEC: Since ORA's task is to identify all internees listed in the historical files, a form where information on whole families in camp and their neighbors and/or friends in camp (especially older bachelors) as living or dead should be helpful. The VIF (voluntary information forms) asks only about parents; there is no place to give information on offsprings who were interned but who died prior to 1988.

ORA: This is an excellent suggestion. When the time comes to print new voluntary information forms, we will add space to provide sibling information.

JACL/LEC: Hot Line callers who have questions about their cases are given a "contact" or "reference" number, a different number each time they call, and are asked to refer to that number when they call again. Since the calls are recorded chronologically and alphabetically by the Hot Line Intake Division, could there not be a more simplified and consistent system that would log inquiries by the name of the primary potential eligible individual, or by their file number which most potential eligibles recognize?

ORA: ORA agrees with the committee's suggestion. We will attempt to use the file number and the date of the call as a specific reference. The only limitation with this plan is that not all callers will have a file number, because their historical internment record, which is used to establish the file number, is missing. In such cases, we will rely on the current method of identifying telephone calls.

JACL/LEC: We have requested a sample file of all the kinds of letters that are sent out by the ORA, since it takes a while to straighten out which letter the inquirer is talking about when they refer to a letter they have received. The color coding of pink for the LPE, or potential eligibility letter, and green for the "verification letter" or "good-to-go" letter is a great improvement but it still leaves numerous other letters unidentified. Also, both pink and green letters are referred to as "verification" letters by ORA staff, and this is confusing. If all letters are to be color coded, it would be helpful for those community persons who are working with potential eligibles to know the legend for all color coded letters.

ORA: ORA prints the letter of potential eligibility on pink paper; the letter of final eligibility (also known as the "good-to-go" letter) is printed on green paper. The military letter is printed on blue paper. In addition, we are willing to consider suggestions to color other letters; however there only a limited number of colors that can be used without making the text illegible.

Most of ORA's standard letters also include a small identifying phrase in the lower left hand corner. Potential recipients can also use this marking to help identify correspondence when contacting ORA's helpline.

JACL/LEC: The green or "good-to-go" letter is the final determination of eligibility and is an important document to the potential recipient. Presently, it is sent to individuals as a form letter without any identification on it as to name or date. It would appear important that the letter be addressed individually and dated, since there is a chance of misplacing this letter in a household of several potential eligibles, or if the papers are handled by someone else in the event of the death of an eligible individual prior to payment date.

This could be accomplished quite simply by making two name labels, one for the envelope address and one to place on the letter itself. The date of its mailing could be rubber date-stamped without difficulty.

ORA: ORA will begin dating the letters in August. However, we are reluctant to add the name and address in the letter because it increases the potential for human error caused by stuffing the letter in the wrong envelope. Perhaps the recipients could keep the envelope and the letter together until such time as the case has been paid.

JACL/LEC: The outreach workshops have been productive but more advanced notice would be helpful. Also, ORA could make it clear that the workshop can help those who have not yet received their pink letter requesting specific documentation if the individuals wish to have their documents reviewed.

ORA: We agree about the need for more advanced notice of workshops. Our goal is to issue a press release at least six weeks before the date of the workshop. We will also review our press releases and handbills to determine if they can be changed to convey more clearly the message that recipients can be verified on the spot.

JACL/LEC: Even though it may mean duplicate mailings, for the next round of workshops it might be helpful for ORA to send out notices directly to those on its list of potential eligibles.

UCLA to commemorate Executive Order

LOS ANGELES—A 1992 series of activities commemorating the 50th anniversary of President Franklin D. Roosevelt's signing of Executive Order 9066 is planned by the Asian American Studies Center of UCLA.

The center will offer events through the year to remind local residents of the internment order signed on Feb. 19, 1942. Of the 120,000 Japanese Americans sent to camps, 175 were UCLA students.

Beginning in February of 1992, a "Day of Remembrance" will be held as a public ceremony at Royal Hall on campus. Speakers will include representatives from campus, government, the Japanese American community and one or more of the former UCLA students who were interned.

In March, a major civil rights conference will be scheduled, co-sponsored by the Asian American Studies Center, the UCLA School of Law, and the Los Angeles Coalition for the 50th Year Remembrance: Japanese American Internment. The conference will focus on the major constitutional issues raised by the incarceration of Japanese Americans during World War II, as well as the lessons that were learned through the experience.

Also featured will be a festival of films on the internment experience, as well as theater performances by the East West Players, a musical tribute, an exhibit of paintings and other art created by Japanese Americans during their wartime incarceration, an internment photo exhibit by Ansel Adams and other exhibitions at the Wight Art Gallery, an inter-ethnic campus relations program, and a colloquium series on recent pioneering scholarship on the internment experience.

"The planned activities are designed to make an impact on both the UCLA community and the outside community in general," said Don Nakanishi, director of the UCLA Asian American Studies Center.

REDRESS

ORA: ORA does do advance mailings, in selected cities, to increase participation at workshops. To date, attendance at virtually all workshops has been quite heavy. We are concerned that a direct mailing would increase attendance to such an extent that we would not be able to provide the individualized attention that is the foundation of the workshop approach.

JACL/LEC: If each name on the WRA/Berkeley lists is to be checked off by the ORA, why can't the list of persons not yet located be published in the Pacific Citizen and other publications with a request that information is being sought about their whereabouts by the ORA. Names of individuals who have funds owed to them by banks or who have property in their names and need to be found sometimes appear in major dailies. Although this may violate the privacy act, it would seem that most people would be glad to be contacted if it means they are entitled to a sum of money.

ORA: ORA agrees, in concept, with this proposal. However, before we begin using this approach, we would like to complete our current method of locating unidentified individuals by contacting members of their families who have been identified. In January, we identified nearly 3,000 previously unidentified family members using this approach (about 99 percent of the unidentified individuals were deceased.) We recently mailed an additional 3,000 letters in late June.

Once we have exhausted this source of information, we plan to help locate potential recipients that ORA has been unable to locate. We envision that this effort will include listing the names of unidentified individuals in Japanese American newspapers.

We have recently entered into an arrangement with the Japanese American Library in San Francisco... The library will provide obituary information from selected Japanese American newspapers to ORA; this information will assist us in identifying individuals who have died before the Civil Liberties Act was passed.

JACL/LEC: In giving examples of the kinds of documentation required, ORA should include the explanation that even Japanese documents (consulate general registry, etc.) may be helpful in providing proof, say, of a marriage date.

ORA: This is an excellent suggestion. As our correspondence is updated, we will include examples of acceptable documents.

JACL/LEC: As a one-time trial experiment to locate isolated potential eligibles who may not be in touch with the Asian American community, it is suggested that a good sized ad incorporating appropriate words from the Civil Liberties Act be used in one large metropolitan major daily, in one medium-sized city newspaper, and in one small town newspaper. The results in the number of new eligibles found could be weighed against the negative backlash aroused and an assessment made as to whether such further efforts would be worthwhile. Timing, of course, would be important in any such publication with the period near the anniversary of the Bill of Rights being obviously more preferable than the first week in December.

ORA: ORA may consider this approach after we complete the plan outlined in the response to the previous question.

JACL/LEC: Although regional staff members of JACL have assisted in ORA redress processing, other responsibilities may at times take priority. It may be more cost effective and provide more direct assistance for ORA to contract service field assistance to help in the upcoming second fiscal year processing of documentation as well as in the search for those individuals not yet located.

ORA: ORA is also planning to contract with an organization to provide assistance to ORA in locating potential eligible individuals who have not been identified. We expect that this contract will be issued within the next six months.

JACL/LEC: Does the denial of eligibility letter make clear that there is a 60-day deadline to respond, and that the date is 60 days from the date of the letter, not 60 days from receipt of the letter?

ORA: The letter of ineligibility states, in two places, that appeals must be submitted within 60 days from the date of the letter.

JACL/LEC: How many denials of eligibility have been appealed and reversed? In advising these people, shall we tell them that it helps to retain an attorney to make the appeal?

ORA: ORA cannot provide advice as to whether individuals should obtain legal counsel to assist them in the appeal process. The decision to obtain counsel rests solely with the appellant.

JACL/LEC: There has been in the community great disappointment in the wording and in the appearance of the letter of apology. To make the letter of apology more official, and a more impressive document worth framing and cherishing for generations to come, the presidential seal, the date, and the wording "Office of the President" are recommended to be added.

Our recommendation:

Office of the President
The White House
Washington, D.C.

We can never fully right the wrongs of the past. But we can take a clear stand for justice and recognize that serious injustices were done to Americans of Japanese ancestry during World War II. A monetary sum and words alone cannot restore lost years or erase painful memories; neither can they fully convey our Nation's resolve to rectify injustice and to uphold the rights of individuals.

In enacting a law calling for restitution, and in offering a sincere apology, the Congress of the United States and your fellow Americans have, in a very real sense, renewed their traditional commitment to the ideals of freedom, equality, and justice. You and your family have our best wishes for the future.

Sincerely,
George Bush

(presidential seal)
date

ORA: ORA has taken the board's comments under advisement. We expect to provide a more specific response to the points raised concerning the apology letter by mid-August.

district and national levels.

Murakawa raised these and other youth concerns at the national board meeting in San Francisco July 13 and 14. She urged the board to acknowledge youth representation and to provide a process for developing future youth leadership.

With the upcoming Washington, D.C., Leadership conference scheduled for Sept. 28 through Oct. 3, Murakawa urged individual to participate since each district may send up to two representatives.

Current youth representatives include: Kim Nakahara and Wesley Namikawa, NCWNPDC; Kim Tachiki, PSW; Karry Kameichi, CCDC; Emily Nishi, EDC; Stephanie Sata, IDC; and Niwa Takano, MDC. The MPDC and PNW currently have no youth representatives.

Nikkeis attend PANA conference

By HARRY K. HONDA

ASUNCION, Paraguay—The sixth Pan American Nikkei Association (PANA) opened here with all the dignitaries present, including President Alberto Fujimori, General Andres Rodriguez, and the first elected mayor of Asuncion, Carlo Filizzola. The convention was held July 25 at the new Paraguayan Japanese Center. Nearly 500 people attended the opening session.

This was the first PANA gathering attended by a head of state. He was accompanied by the Japanese ambassador to Paraguay, Shunji Maruyama, and Emi Kasamatsu de Encisco, convention chair, who reported that more than 200 delegates, friends and youth attended from outside of Paraguay, including nearly 50 from the United States.

Cressey Nakagawa, national JACL president, attending his second PANA gathering, made two extemporaneous presentations to the South American Nikkei.

Carlos Kasuga of Mexico City was reelected PANA international president—a position to which he was first elected in 1981. The Chile Japanese group was voted into PANA—the 11th country admitted into the organization.

He spoke on JACL's work to pass the redress bill, explaining the U.S. political process to the many younger participants at the opening session, and later how Pearl Harbor and U.S.-Japan trade impacts upon Japanese Americans.

Masaoka fund needs support

The national steering committee of the Mike M. Masaoka Fellowship Fund is seeking contributions to further the training and development of young leadership to serve the Japanese community.

The fund provides four categories for contributions:

- Friends: All contributions up to $1,000.
- Sustaining Fellows: Contributions of $200 per year for five years.
- Fellows: Contributions of $1,000 to $2,500.
- Emeritus Fellows: Contributions of $2,500 and above. Corporate contributions are also invited.

Contributions are used only for the purposes of leadership development. It is anticipated that only the interest from the capital fund will be distributed. The initial award is planned this year.

Contributions: JACL, 1765 Sutter St., San Francisco, CA, 94115; 415/921-5225. ☐

In memory of a brother and a 442nd soldier

"Kindly accept our contribution to the Legacy Fund in memory of our brother, Pfc. Teruo Ted Fujioka, who gave his life as a member of the 442nd Regimental Combat Team," read the letter from Nobu T. and Miye Kawai.

This Pasadena couple, like many who had lost a loved one in the war, contributed to the JACL Legacy Fund because they believed that the bravery of the 442nd Combat Team erased all doubts of the loyalty of Americans of Japanese descent.

During the war, Mr. Kawai had organized the JACL Butte Chapter of Hila, Ariz., which was the only JACL chapter within camp.

With Bill Hosokawa as editor, Nobu Kawai also served as associate editor of the Heart Mountain Sentinel—putting to good use his degree in journalism from the University of Missouri.

Later the Kawais transferred to Heart Mountain, to be closer to Mrs. Kawai's parents.

When the war began volunteered for the army. "Miye's younger brother, Ted, asked me the reasons why I volunteered," Nobu said. "I told him I was an American citizen. As such, I had an obligation to defend my country. If I were fortunate enough to return after the war, I would like to speak out for full citizenship rights for my son and be able to stand proudly before any audience and challenge anyone to question my loyalty.

"I was surprised and alarmed the next day when Ted informed me he too had volunteered for the army. I told him war is serious business. There is no assurance that he will ever come out of it alive. If he enlisted because of my urging, I asked him to reconsider to make sure that it was his personal decision.

"When he assured me that it was his personal decision, I told him I wanted him to explain his move to his parents. For that purpose, I asked the family to gather for a meeting."

Pfc. Teruo Ted Fujioka was one of the first in the 442nd to be transferred overseas, and he died in action in France at the mere age of 19.

Ironically, Mr. Kawai was not inducted, and soon returned to Gila River to take care of his sick father.

After the war, the Kawais returned to their home in Pasadena. Mr. Kawai gave 52 years of outstanding service to the Meadow Gold Dairy as production supervisor.

Nobu and Miye Kawai, 84 years and 74 years old respectively, recently celebrated their 50th anniversary.

As long time JACLers, (Mr. Kawai was the Pasadena Chapter president during the outbreak of the war), they have an unwavering faith in the future of the Nikkei community. Their message for the younger generation is that, "We owe it to the 442nd Combat Team—those loyal Americans of Japanese ancestry—who in the face of prejudice and discrimination, volunteered to exercise their right to defend their country as American citizens. Remember that without the bravery of the Nisei in all branches of the service, our loyalty as American citizens would still be clouded and we would not have been able to realize the Civil Liberties Act of 1988. The rights that we enjoy are the fruits of the responsibility that we assume."

Rest stops and restaurants on the road

Impressions during a 2,700-mile through the American Midlands:

Many individuals profess to dislike the Interstate highway system, that web of four- and six-lane concrete thoroughfares that stitches the nation together. Boring, they say. Nothing to see. They by-pass the towns and villages that make up the real America outside metropolitan areas.

Agreed. But there's nothing like them for efficiency if your objective is to get from Point A to Point B by motor vehicle in the shortest possible time, which we did recently.

We set the cruise control and headed across the Great Plains, hour after hour, at a steady 70 m.p.h., between fields of young corn and ripening wheat stretching to the horizon.

Is this landscape monotonous? No, beautiful. These are the fields that provide for a nation's food needs and far, far more. After a while it struck me that the true source of America's strength is not the steel mills nor the computer factories and research laboratories, but these endless stretches of black soil whose produce fills the granaries. Of what use are computer chips or laser beams without food?

There seem to be two classes of drivers on the interstates—those who plod along at the legal 65 m.p.h. limit, and those who fudge a bit by pushing the throttle to 70. The massive 18-wheeler rigs are in the 70 class until they hit an upslope stretch. Then the pull of gravity gently brakes them back below legal limits.

Every state we went through had built rest stops along the interstates. These are small green oases where one can dismount, stretch, get a drink of water or a can of pop, and take care of bodily needs.

There's a certain anonymous uniformity about these stations, something like the bus depots which are almost undistinguishable from one town to the next. Wouldn't rest stops provide an opportunity for states to distinguish themselves? It would be hard to forget a state that offered free lemonade on a hot day (some offer free coffee on holidays), or souvenirs like a small bag of local popping corn, or a little lapel pin that said something like "I stopped in Kansas for a little wee-wee."

Excuse me.

There's a sameness to restaurants across the Midlands. Steakhouses. Perkins. Village Inn Pancakes. McDonalds. Arby's. Burger King. And now, Chinese restaurants advertising Cantonese, Hunan and Beijing fare in the prairie states. Restaurants offering "American and Chinese dishes" used to be commonplace in towns along the Union Pacific mainline. Today they have spread away from railroad towns and they stick to Chinese fare.

But don't expect to get San Francisco or New York quality in tall corn country. I've discovered over the years that the palatability of Chinese dishes diminishes rapidly the farther you get from the source of ingredients. In other words, when you're in steak country, you'd be well advised to order steak. ☐

BILL MARUTANI

Shigaretto

I WAS LISTENING to a Japanese conversational tape and doing reasonably well I thought until I heard the phrase "tabako wo nomu." Nomu? To smoke a cigarette, I had always thought, was "tabako wo suu." Perhaps the tape was outdated; after all in translating from English ("What time does the airplane leave for Kobe?") the translator's work for "airplane" was hi-ko-ki. I painfully recall having used the same term when inquiring of a Narita cabdriver the "hi-ko-ki" flight time to Hiroshima, only to be met with a quizzical look, followed by the cabbie exclaiming "Oh, jetto desuka?" That pegged me as some quaint soul from Rip van Winkle.

I was listening to the language tape while driving. I decided that as soon as I got home, I must pull out the *jiten*s and look up the usage of nomu which I had always believed meant "to drink" such as "sake wo nomu."

OF COURSE, "NOMU" does mean

"to drink," but it also has six other meanings or usages, including "smoking." The remaining five meanings include: "swallow, gulp;" "conceal" such as a dagger; "bear" such as to suffer; "accept" such as a proposal or offer; and "despise" or "make light of." Seven meanings from the word "nomu." Actually, one should not be too surprised by this, for if we check the meaning of our own word "drink," it, too, reflects a number of meanings. To cite a few examples: to make a salutary toast; to absorb fully a pleasant sensation, such as beautiful music; a portion of liquid; and, there's the slang term referring to a body of water ("drink"), or even an accumulation of H₂O. As for the related word "swallow," it also has meanings beyond ingesting into the stomach via the esophagus, such as "swallowing one's pride" (how painful that can be!), also "suppressing" one's feelings—which it may be noted, bears similar meanings to the Japanese "nomu."

Which reminds me to get back to exploring "tabako wo nomu." What about "tabako wo suu"?

IT TURNS OUT that "suu" also has several meanings, starting with "breathe in, inhale, imbibe." The immediate distinction (probably false) that occurred to me was that if one simply "puffs" on a cigarette and promptly blows the smoke out, that's "nomu;" on the other hand, if one inhales all that carcinogenic stuff into the lungs, that's "suu." As I said, this probably is false; I'll defer to the linguists out there. The other meanings of "suu": "sip," more likely "slurp" such as soup if one's auditory experience in a Japanese noodle shop is any guide; "kiss" as the lips, which must be an abandoned form of "seppun" the more traditional Japanese term for osculation; "absorb" as in "suitori-gami" or "(ink) blotter"; and "draw" or "attract."

HAVING GONE THROUGH this exercise, I'm not sure that I'm any more sure whether one "nomu's" a cigarette or "suu's" one. I don't touch the stuff anyway. ☐
