JOHN SY ENG TO PRESENT STATE INCOME TAX ISSUE FOR OCT. 16 JACL MEETING

The announcement of last month's talk on income tax was premature. This time it should be for real as the election will be held Nov. 6. John Sy Eng, first Asian legislative member in the state legislature, has been getting press notices lately with the legalization of Mah Jong. For the subject matter at hand the cost of school administration has been going higher and higher percentagewise while the enrollments have been taking a downturn. Then add the voters' resistance. The state income tax is the only way out of this dilemma, we'll probably be told. Maybe this IS the time to express your feelings and he IS a member of the lawmakers. He will certainly field your questions. The meeting will start as usual at 8 p.m. in the JACL office, 526 S. Jackson. Everyone is welcome.

Though we received the press release too late for publication we acknowledge that Fay Chong Memorial Lecturers of the Wing Luke Memorial Foundation on Sept. 18 was Dr. James Morishima, Director of Asian American Studies at the U.W. Some of us went over to the Museum to taste the Chinese delicacy following JACL meeting held on the same evening. Morishima spoke on the "American Images of Asians." Oct. 2 lecturer was Ben Yorita, instructor of Ethnic Studies at S.C.C.C. and the subject was "The Quest for the Golden Years of Retirement--the Elderly Asian Americans." Two remaining lectures are listed in the Calendar of Events. Wing Luke Museum recently received $2,000.00 for a "Chinese Pioneer in Washington" project. The fund was from Washington State American Revolution Bicentennial Commission for projects to celebrate the American Bicentennial.

The City Council parceled out $3.2 million of the last of 1973 federal revenue-sharing funds Sept. 10. The allocations included $86,000 for the Southeast Manpower Opportunities Center providing training primarily for Asians; $61,040 for the Filipino Youth Activities Center; and $29,670 for the Asian Drop-in Center. Southeast Manpower Opportunities Center which works under the label of Employment Opportunities Center (EOC) appointed Art Yorozu to be chairman of the nominations committee. Keiji Sato resigned as treasurer effective this month and John Matsumoto was appointed by board chairman Lloyd F. Hara to fill this position until the election in November.

The Seattle Imperials Drum & Bugle Corps is accepting application for membership. Persons 12 to 21 years old may obtain information by calling 723-0277 or inquiring at the Imperials Headquarters at 4200 S. Othello St.

The "Pride and the Shame" traveling exhibit has been working quietly and continuously, according to chairperson Dr. Minoru Masuda. The committee is working with the change in format. This time the exhibit will go to the general public such as Seattle Center, museums, etc. and will continued to be shown in the school. The panels will also be continued.

Last June when the funding was initially cut off for the Demonstration Project for Asian Americans, Donna Yee left for the San Francisco Bay area. Apparently she is there to stay. Donna has sent a beautiful letter of resignation from the JACL board. Donna who has been active in the Seattle Asian Community has been one of the anchors providing expertise in proposal writing, Asian elderly problems, hard statistical data on Asian community, and has been able to communicate orally as outstanding spokesman for the Asian community. We say thank you for the honor of having you on our board and our best wishes on your future.

President Ben Nakagawa remarked that newsletter mailing night was upon him before he was ready to arrange for the working crews. Hurried calls to two other families were more than enough help for the mailout. By 8:45 p.m. the work was completed. Showing up for the family night were: all Katayamas--Kazzie, Mits, Mark Glenn and Steven; all Watanabes--Kayko, Hideo, Sheryl, Jill, Joy, Stacy; all Nakagawas--Mako, Ben Daren, Bradley, and DeeAn. Also, Joe Yamamoto, Brenda Carpio, John Matsumoto and Eira Nagaoka.

Dr. Lindy Sata has agreed to conduct a leadership training workshop for the leadership in the Seattle JACL. The site will be at the Rokka Ski lodge at Crystal Mountain from 8 p.m. Oct. 12 through Oct. 14. During this workshop, we will be examining various methods of program implementation and planning, methods by which individuals may work more effectively together in JACL activities and related projects, and improve methods of conducting meetings.

President Nakagawa announced that anyone who wish to receive additional copies of application form for increased social security benefits up to $174.80 resulting from being interned during World War II regardless of citizenship status may write to him c/o Seattle JACL.

1973 ELECTION CAMPAIGN HAD HEAVY ASIAN PARTICIPATIONS

Liem Eng Tuai and Wes Uhlman will be the nominees for the Nov. 6 election. Ruby Chow (D), Chinese restaurant owner and active in the community and civic services, narrowly defeated Walt Hubbard (D) in the Democratic sudden-death race for the King County Council's 5th District seat. There were no Republican candidates. Mrs. Chow will be the first minority member on the County Council. Wesley Tao fell behind to third place finish in the City Council Positions No. 4 with 9,361 votes and Theodore L. Choi in fifth place with 5,631. Robert Santos led the Republicans in the 35th District 1-year unexpired term and will be battling Mrs. Ruthe Ridder, South Park housewife with a degree in psychology. ----o----

COMMUNITY INPUT ON PROPOSED REPARATION BILL VARIES

Henry Miyatake had been canvassing the community organizations to seek input for the proposed bill on reparations for lost wages during WW2 incarceration.

He said the Issei felt everyone should be compensated regardless of age, the rationale being that children suffered from diet deficiency, disrupted family life and the deterioration of educational process aside from the business consideration. Issei feel that in some distant future we should be thinking about the monument to be erected to emphasize the historical significance of evacuation.

The Sansei on the other hand, according to Miyatake, felt that Japanese were too quiet. The Sansei believes that if we don't change our ways, this may happen again. We should at least affirm our position and make an attempt to balk on evacuation order. The militancy of the Sansei is showing up. One of the most frequently asked question was "Why have we waited so long?" Of course, we don't have a ready answer.

"I feel this is the last possibility to get some economic relief for Issei and older Nisei faced with marginal subsistence level of income," said Miyatake. "That was confirmed in the social security registration effort. Many of the Issei are not members of JACL but we should keep our communications open to them and given them understanding."

Miyatake stressed that we are not just working for JACL but for the whole community.

A letter was read from the Social Concerns Committee of the Japanese Baptist Church sanctioning the project. Masao Tomita is chairperson.

President Nakagawa indicated the next step is to formulate a proposal for submission in time for the next district council meeting. The committee at present include chairman Miyatake, Don Kazama, Ben Nakagawa and one other person who volunteered during the meeting. Anyone who is interested in helping this committee may call Nakagawa.

JAPANESE COMMUNITY SERVICE ORGANIZATION RECEPTIVE TO CULTURAL CENTER

The decision was made to elevate the project cost to $600,000.00 ceiling for the Japanese Community Cultural and Community Center. The total site requirement is estimated at 2-acres to comply with building code regulation for adequate parking. The building will contain 25,000 square feet of useable space. The projected $600,000 cost will include legal, engineering, architectural, and right-of-way fee in addition to the building cost.

Ken Nakano has spoken to the Nikkeijin Kai (Japanese American Service). The group headed by Genji Mihara was very receptive and pleasantly surprised. Mihara reminded that ten years ago they had tried to conceive such a Center. The community was not ready psychologically at that time. The Shosha group, who are the Japanese businessmen assigned in Seattle area felt they were ready to back up the program. The Shosha group maintains private Japanese language classes to maintain their children's language proficiency. Without this program the children may slip back linguistically to handicap their competitiveness when they return to Japan.

SEATTLE UNIVERSITY TO PROVIDE DEGREES IN ASIAN STUDIES

Seattle University recently developed an Asian Studies Degree Program. The Minority Student Affairs group played a crucial part in the development of the program, and, as such, are particularly interested in the participation of Asian American students in it.

The program is academically very challenging and at the same time very timely and pragmatic preparing students for a number of careers or existing graduate programs. The program calls for three major foci of study (language, economics, and history and political science) with either one full year or one quarter abroad at either Sophia University or Ateneo University, both sister schools with excellent reputations.

For this reason the Office of Minority Students Affairs at the Seattle University is inquiring into the feasibility of local agencies providing either a one year or one quarter scholarship to be donated for the explicit use of a Asian American student from the Seattle area to be used in this program while abroad. For more information call Robt. Flor (626-6226).

NORTHWEST FLORISTS HOLD SEPTEMBER CONVENTION

Two year's organization by 1973 General Chairman Ken Maekawa has resulted in the 49th annual Northwestern Florists' Association convention last month at the Sea-tac Motor Inn.

His board of directors include: Irving Allen, publicity; Bill Curtis, finance; Egon Molbak, entertainment; Shig Otani, seminars, and Jay Sarbaum, decorations.

Speakers included Yoshima Shibata of Mount Eden, Calif., at the Wholesalers' Breakfast; Dr. Harry Tayama of Ohio State University and Shibata at the Growers' Clinic.

Maekawa and his brother, Kay, operate the Maekawa Bros. Greenhouse, which is experimenting successfully with artificial lighting. The firm receives constant visitors and nationwide publicity regarding new lighting efforts and equipment.

The Maekawa brothers were the first in the West to utilize artificial lighting to promote the growth and stamina of pot mums. Local retailers regard the Maekawa mums as giving customers hardier and more colorful mums than before.

The greenhouse continually is trying to find the least-expensive method of growing "June in January" quality pot mums. All projects take at least two years before being used commercially.

MAYOR'S PROGRAM TO REDUCE CRIME IN THE NEIGHBORHOOD

Mayor Wes Uhlman submitted Sept. 13 for City Council consideration of $1.5 million Criminal Justice Plan designed to further reduce crime in Seattle and to fund improvements in city law enforcement agencies. When approved by the City Council, the plan will become the City's request to the State Law and Justice Committee.

Street robberies, especially those involving the elderly, are another major target of the plan. Since most robbery offenders arrested in 1972 had been previously apprehended, part of the reduction program would fund a color slide system of selected previous offenders to improve identification of assailants. Such a system might dramatically increase recall of characteristics of suspects by witnesses and victims, and increase convictions. The total robbery reduction program would cost $85,000. Other samples on the mayor's proposal provides $121,000 for emergency and counseling services to victims; $80,000 for consumer protection; property identification, security tips and organizing neighborhood watch program will cost $180,000. "Open door and windows provided convenient entry in 30% of all residential burglaries last year," Mayor Uhlman said. Youth service bureau would cost $447,000 and $105,000 will support burglary investigations unit.

The clinic is staffed completely by volunteer doctors, nurses, medical students and bilingual advocates that speak Cantonese, Mandarin, Japanese, Tagalog and Llocano.
