JACL MEETING - Wednesday, March 16, 1983, 7:30 p.m. at the JACL Office, 316 Maynard Ave. S., Room 109. Mako Nakagawa, presiding. Everyone, members and non-members welcome to attend. Refreshment as usual.

AGENDA

- I. Roll Call
- II. Approval of minutes, approval of Treasurer's report
- III. Committee reports
- IV. Announcements
- V. Adjournment

PUYALLUP MEMORIAL

Henry Miyatake made a sobering report during the workshop Feb. 12 at the JACL retreat held in the Nippon Kan. Two years ago the Western Washington Fair Board had agreed to the monument of Camp Harmony to be set inside the fairground. Artist George Tsutakawa consented to construct the 10-high monument and the design was approved. The seed money was raised. Miyatake said everyone was happy.

Following the $2½ million reconstruction program at the Fairground, the local community including its Legion Post started to pressure the fair board opposing the construction of the monument. Four Nikkei were asked by the board for feeler to see if they had any objection to relocation of the monument outside the gate.

The local American Legion post submitted the resolution to the American Legion Department of Washington (meaning state wide convention) held in Bellevue July 23 and 24, 1982. The resolution opposed the principle and the funding of $30,000 by the state legislature for this purpose. The resolution passes.

It must be remembered in the community of this size, the Fair Board, American Legion Post, Rotary Club, and the business community are closely entwined to form a solid block, according to Miyatake.

The alternative plan by the Fairground Board called for placement of the monument in the parking lot across the street from the gate. The deadline for completion was set for July, 1, 1983 which can only be interpreted to mean further harassment. The monument if built on the parking lot will become a prime target for vandalism. Miyatake told the media that a stone monument at a similar camp in Manzanar was blown to bits in the early 1970s.

Some of the board members <sup>felt</sup> during the February meeting of JACL was that we would not consent for the monument or even a plaque being placed outside the fair ground. This will symbolize an additional setback and continued suppression on the expression of this tragic chapter in the history of the United States.

We are not out of the woods yet. Fair ground board will be meeting again. And with the publicity by all the media, who knows what may happen next.

REDRESS UPDATE

National: Congressman Mike Lowry will introduce a bill during this session of Congress that would pay $25,000 to each former internee or his/her heirs. Several representatives have indicated that they will cosponsor this measure, and Senator Alan Cranston of California has said he will introduce the bill in the U.S. Senate.

Bills are enacted into law only with a great deal of effort, and lobbying will be crucial to the passage of any redress bill. The Washington Coalition on Redress will keep you informed as to the progress of the bill and will be asking for your help.

State: The Washington State Senate is now considering SB 3163, which provides $5,000 to each of the 38 former employees of Washington State who lost their jobs due to the incarceration. Both the Ways and Means and Rules committees have passed the bill (the Rules Committee by a narrow margin), and it will go to the floor of the Senate next week (February 22-25). The State House of Representatives will consider the bill when (if) it passes the Senate.

NOTABLE COMMENTS:

Don Kazama gave a brief historical overview of the Seattle Chapter JACL.

In 1921 the JACL had its beginning as Seattle Progressive Citizens League with Shig Osawa as president concentrating in being good citizen. We have to consider the time setting.

Don said he got involved with JACL in 1963. He gave Dr. Terry Toda credit for the opportunity to start the Human Relations Committee. Dr. Toda believed that JACL should be involved but told Don to go slowly. The Seattle Civil Rights Package was acknowledged by Pat Okura to have formed the basis for similar package in the National JACL. In the latter part of 1960s, the Asian Coalition for Equality strengthened the JACL. Repeal of the Title II which was part of Walter-McCarran Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952 made possible for obtaining citizenship for Issei. But the 1952 Act provided for the maintenance of internment camps to be used in another "emergency." Seattle Chapter led in the Title II Repeal drive. We were also the first to start the drive to get civil service time credit for the duration spent in the concentration camps American style. (The Seattle Chapter started study course for supervisor to prepare for postal supervisory exam and help upgrade the Asian job status.) In 1962, the State of Washington Non-Citizen Land Law was repealed. Seattle Chapter went to bat for opening high school and elementary school principal positions in the Seattle public schools. All these gains made for the Nikkei has in turn helped other Asians.

Don's next dream is to penetrate the corporate sector in helping to make policies helpful to the minorities.

Jerry Shigaki, president-elect, said he got involved with JACL eight or nine years ago after receiving help from JACL. He became a board member. He wanted to assess the current involvement with JACL the past two years.

In accordance to the U.S. census, he reminded that Asians earn on the average $22,000 per year, $2,000 per year more than the majority society. The national trend at the present level has 17% receiving college degrees but the Asians have 1/3 of their students getting college diplomas. But the bottom line is there are very few top Asian executives.

For the next two years Shigaki will try to make strong commitment and show that 1) as JACLer we are much stronger 2) that as an individual we are not as strong 3) maintain cultural identity in spite of the growing inter-marriage.

With JACL, we get involved in all age group and 20 different occupations are among active board. Shigaki said our chapter is only as strong as individual members.

POTENTIAL CONSEQUENCE OF ENTERING A GUILTY PLEA

Olympia--Rep. Gary Locke, D-Seattle, has introduced a bill requiring courts to advise criminal defendants who are not citizens of the United States of the consequences of entering a guilty plea.

"Being convicted on a guilty plea for even the most minor offense can be grounds for deportation or denial of citizenship," Locke said. "Many non-citizens do not realize this when they agree to plead guilty. Nor do the courts and many criminal defense attorneys understand the potential consequences of a guilty plea."

House Bill 522 requires that defendants who are not citizens be informed of the potential consequences of conviction and that they acknowledge their understanding of the advisement in writing prior to pleading guilty.

RUPPES, LOWRY SPEAKS DURING DAY OF REMEMBRANCE FUN RUN PROGRAM

Representative Mike Lowry spoke to the full house at the N.V.C. Memorial Clubhouse during the 41st anniversary of President Franklin D. Roosevelt's signing of Executive Order 9066. The program was chaired by Lori Matsukawa.

Repres. Lowry explained why this anniversary date is so important.

The thing that made United States the greatest nation in the history of the world has been the Constitution of the United States and the principle of the Bill of Right, Repres. Lowry said.

This basic principle is different from almost any other political system in the world. Repres. Lowry said that many people forget what the most important principle and the reason for the Constitution was and is to protect individual against the abuse of government power. That is why the Bill of Right was written.

There is a reason, Repres. Lowry said, that we demand due process of law that people be given the right in Constitution to a day in court to be tried because the experiences of other countries say that without this, people will be denied their right to defend themselves against accusers and defend themselves against the government and be placed in prison without their being able to prove their innocence.

Bill of Right and the Constitution of the United States are there for the purpose of protection of the individual against the abuse of government power.

41 years ago today, Repres. Lowry continued, this government absolutely violated that principle. 41 years ago today the President of the United States and later upheld by the Supreme Court and violated the principle of the Constitution of the United States. This wasn't a social racist group out doing something. This was the government of the United States and that's the principal thing that must be remembered.

If in 1941, the government can get by with violating the Constitution of the United States, then in "x" number of years in the future it can happen again to any group of people or individual. This is the reason that it is important that there is direct monetary redress. I want this government to feel it so it can increase the chance that this type of thing not happening again.

Petition for a writ of error corum nobis

Kathryn Bannai, counsel to Dr. Gordon Hirabayashi, explained the petition for a writ of error coram nobis charging that during their trial the military and federal government officials suppressed and destroyed key evidence to affect the outcome of their case. Back in 1981, one lawyer-professor was collecting information on the book he was writing in the cases of Hirabayashi, Korematsu and Yasui Supreme Court cases. Under the Freedom of Information Act a request was made to the Dept. of Justice to see the 40 years old file and the writer found startling information which became the basis for the petitions.

From the Appellate Court to the Supreme Court, United States government engaged in the pattern of misconduct designed to secure instant conviction and judicial approval of evacuation and incarceration program. The evidence found that high government officials altered or destroyed evidence to influence the outcome. Justice Department and the War Department were aware of the high level government report directly refuting the espionage and disloyalty claim. The government intelligence machinery concluded that individual selective evacuation as opposed to group evacuation based solely on ancestry was not only sufficient but preferable. The government had suppressed all these reports and memos were manipulated to secure conviction and to justify their evacuation decision.

FROM THE BOARD:

We had a very close call for the newsletter mailout for Feb. 9. Only three were present. Following a "frantic" call on the telephone more help arrived and we survived this emergency. Volunteers for the evening were DeeAn Sanae Nakagawa, Ben and Mako Nakagawa, May Sasaki, Masako Tomita, Karen Seriguchi, and Eira Nagaoka.

From the grapevine we learn that two sophisticated computer mailing sorters are in place in Seattle and three more will be forthcoming. This may mean that bulk mailings such as ours will be eventually be presorted not only by the zip codes which we are doing now but but the addresses within the given zipcode may have to be prearranged in sequence according to postal service specification. This may not be implemented until late in the (cont'd bottom pp 6)
