TO THE YOUNG ADULT GROUP -- by TED IWATA.

At the November 16 meeting the most important business of the Young Adult Group will take place -- the election of new officers! The Nominations Committee has submitted a tentative list of candidates: but for any further nominations, please contact immediately your Committee Chairman or Patsy Akita, Nominations Chairman. Furthermore, it is urged that everyone ask their chairmen about their list of candidates, the purpose of each office and the over-all program of the group, to avoid confusion at the meeting. Be sure you know who the candidates are before the election! For members who are unable to attend the meeting, absentee ballots should be available from your respective chairmen. Installation of new officers will be held jointly with the adult group on December 8 at Bush Garden. Tickets for the installation dinner costs $5 each unless a special rate is approved for the Young Adults. The PNWDC CONVENTION December 4 and 5 is especially interesting for its discussion on the JACL Youth program. Registration is at the Winthrop Hotel Saturday afternoon from 4 to 5 o'clock and the fee is $9 covering the dinner and program. Hotel accommodations are separate but special rates may be available for us. The dance later in the evening will be a good opportunity to meet fellow youths from Portland, Tacoma and other areas. SEATTLE HUMAN RIGHTS COMMISSION

By Y. Philip Hayasaka

In race relations, it appears at times that the "smallest thing" can touch off an explosion. In Los Angeles, the arrest of a traffic violator touched off a riot. In Seattle, an alleged name-calling incident touched off an assault that resulted in the death of a man.

Race relations is a sensitive and emotional area that requires much common sense to make it work. It is a complex area because it deals with people--and how to get along with each other in today's complex urban society.

Yet, it is often the small, often the thoughtless words spoken (that can be avoided) that lead to tragic endings. The Seattle Urban League, in the field of race relations for many years, has suggested some tips relating to the use of words that may assist in sensitizing people in making them aware of the devastating implications of certain words and phrases. Some of these tips include:

Avoid racial jokes, for their humor is derived from stereotyping or ridiculing racial, religious and nationality groups and are seldom funny to members of the group involved.

Avoid opprobrious nicknames. The use of terms such as "darky," "dago," "chink," "jap," "nigger," "kike," are unpardonable.

Watch your semantics, such as "Indian giver," "Chinaman's chance," "Jew him down," for they are the results of an unconscious belief in white supremacy and anti-Semitism.

Avoid unnecessary labels, such as "my people" or "you people," as this accentuates differences.

Pronounce the word "Negro" distinctly, for a slur can cause this perfectly proper word to sound like a hated epithet.

Don't generalize about groups. Claims that they are lazy, they are mercenary, they are bigots, they are thieves, they are sly, are all blanket generalizations which are untrue, unscientific and undemocratic. Use the same criteria for evaluation of all persons. Apply the same standards of judgment to all persons, regardless of race or religion. No group has a monopoly on either ability or depravity. Unnecessary references to race are in poor taste.

Practice speaking as if members of all groups were present at all times. After all, speech is a habit.
